Maxwell to walk

Long Beach Mayor Sam Maxwell faced the toughest test of his political career Tuesday night when Alderman Jimmy Moran challenged him to walk ten miles in Sunday's Walkathon for the crippled children. Moran promised to raise $100 in donations if the mayor walked the ten miles.

There was some discussion as to the advisability of such action at this time, but the mayor finally agreed to walk as far as he could if the money was guaranteed. Moran then tried to weasel out of the deal by saying that the mayor would get ten dollars for each mile walked. However, the mayor and the board of aldermen finally agreed upon the $100 total for the mayor walking a distance of not less than one mile and no more than ten miles. Moran said that donations for the cause would be accepted at the police department.

City Attorney Harold DeMetz reported that the state auditor, Hamp King, had refused Long Beach's request for an audit of the city books because no charges of wrong-doing necessitated the action. Alderman Sal Giuffria said that he considered Alderman Jimmy Savarese's "smoke screen" accusation of him in a newspaper article as sufficient cause to warrant the audit. DeMetz said that the newspaper article was not the grounds for such action.

The controversy arises from a letter Savarese released to the press in September, portions of which were published in the Sea Coast Echo September 19. In the letter, Savarese charged that Moran and Giuffria had been spending taxpayers' money illegally, citing as examples Giuffria's expenditures of $1,324 at a Public Works convention in Hawaii and Moran and Giuffria's hiring of a dogcatcher.

After the meeting, Savarese said that he would not write his allegations to the state auditor but that he would "make countermoves against anything Giuffria should do."

Giuffria said that he would wait for the results of the yearly audit in December.

In other action, the board amended a zoning ordinance that will facilitate the construction of an apartment complex. The tract of land affected by the rezoning is the section bounded by North Cleveland Avenue, East Old Pass Road, Nicholson Avenue, and the city limits. G. P. Clegg, zoning enforcement officer told the council that a firm was considering building an apartment complex inside that tract.

In another matter, the board deferred action for still another meeting on the request from the International Children's Summer Village for an annual donation. Moran said that he was unable to act on the request because he wanted to know how the children were picked in different years, suggesting the possibility of preferential treatment to certain candidates. The Summer Village is for 11-year-olds from all over the world. Long Beach is supposed to be the site of the 1976 Village.

The board also accepted the zoning board of appeals decision that the fence around Dr. Ben Kitchings property was legal. The fence, erected around Lots Village, has caused protests from neighbors. When asked, DeMetz said he would not voice his opinion on the decision because the matter would end up in court.

Also, Woody Barber requested that the board designate or approve the Mississippi Automobile Technicians Association as the investigator of consumer complaints concerning auto repairs. Barber said that the association, which is chartered and non-profit, can properly diagnose consumer complaints about possible fraudulent or incompetent auto repairmen. Barber said that he was making the request because he wanted to see the state's recent consumer protection law become industry-oriented. Barber's request was taken under advisement by the board for further study of the association's qualifications.

Finally, the board confirmed the action taken in executive session last week. The action concerns the renewal and provisional renewal of lounge licenses.

Ladner wins runoff

Hancock County School Board incumbent Horace "Red" Davis was defeated Tuesday by challenger Oris Ladner in a runoff election for Davis' board seat.

Complete, but unofficial, returns show Ladner with 869 votes to 746 for Davis.

Davis also trailed Ladner in the Nov. 5 general election by 77 votes after getting only 688 votes to 765 for Ladner.

Davis' term will expire Dec. 31 with Ladner taking office at the board's first meeting in January. He has been a board member since 1969. Members are elected for six year terms.

Funds sought by county

Hancock supervisors Monday responded favorably to a request by Frank Dunaway of Southern Engineering, Picayune, Miss., to represent the county in applications for federal monies for community development.

Dunaway told supervisors that under a new bill passed by Congress, Mississippi was eligible to receive approximately $10 million in community development funds next year.

Dunaway said no fee would be charged the county unless he was successful in obtaining federal funds for the county.

In other business Monday supervisors accepted the resignation of Donald McIntyre as Civil Defense Director for Hancock County with regret and then named him as acting director without pay until a permanent director can be named.

The board then unanimously accepted the motion of beat one supervisor Jerry Ladner to advertise for applicants for the Civil Defense Director vacancy.

The board accepted the resolutions of Port and Harbor director Wilson Webre to 1) make payment of $900 to Michael Baker & Associates of Jackson for official plats of the Port Bienville, Industrial Park perimeter; 2) authorize approval of the Port & Harbor as sponsor for Overnight Transport Company of Richmond, Va. in its application to the Interstate Commerce Commission to operate in the Port Bienville Industrial Park; 3) cancel the lease contract with Irvin LaCoste for operation of the Bayou Caddy Marina and advertise for bids for rental of the marina on a monthly basis.

In other business the board took under advisement two bids received for supplies for the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department. Bids were from Mestayer Lumber for $1840.71 and from W. A. McDonald for $1745.85.

The board made donations of $200 to the Hancock North Central School basketball team for a trip to the Jaycee Tournament in Houston, Texas Dec. 26-27-28 and $500 to the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for a 16-page booklet on the advantages of living in Hancock County.

by Dan Barber

Hancock supervisors Monday agreed to participate in a three-day no fare demonstration of bus service by the Mississippi Coast Transit Authority as part of an experiment to see if such mass transit would be utilized in the Bay-Waveland area. No date has been set for the trial service yet.

Under the proposal MCTA will operate two 19 passenger buses during a 12 hour period for three days to acquaint Hancock Countians with the transit service. The service is currently in operation in Biloxi-Gulfport with expansion planned for Long Beach and Pass Christian in December.

Cost of the three day demonstration will be borne jointly by the two municipalities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland with the county. The three day operation will cost the two cities and the county $916 to cover the cost of driver wages, insurance, and publicity.

MCTA director Col. Tom Morris, who advanced the proposal, said that he was hopeful that the operation would convince county and city officials of the feasibility of extending bus service to the Hancock area.

Morris outlined the cost proposals for such a venture for supervisors Monday. Capital equipment costs for two buses would amount to $57,000 but 80 percent federal funding would reduce the local share, Morris said, to $11,400.

Actual operation costs for two buses would approximate $58,451 annually, he added, of which only $37,490 would be recouped in estimated revenues. Morris said that the buses would likely have to be subsidized $20,961 during the first year of operation. The buses would have to be subsidized annually in all probability, he added.

Beat one Supervisor Jerry Ladner questioned whether the $100,000 combined capital and operating cost was justified by the 40 passenger capacity of the two buses.

"I'm just not certain," Ladner said, "that we wouldn't be paying $100,000 just to pick up and deliver the same 40 people." Ladner said, however, that he was willing to participate in the demonstration period as long as the cost was borne equally by the two cities and county.

Beat five supervisor Jimmy Travirca said that the board had already set its budget for the current fiscal year and said that he had hoped the MCTA would advance its proposal earlier.

Morris said that federal monies would be available to the county until July 1975 and that MCTA could probably operate for a couple of months on their own capital in Hancock County until budget time in August if necessary.

Neither the city of Waveland or Bay St. Louis has committed themselves to the MCTA proposal beyond the three day demonstration period. The city of Waveland voted not to endorse the program earlier this year when first presented until the board of supervisors had heard the proposal.

The New Orleans police department worked as a desk sergeant over approximately 30 patrolmen, will begin serving as police chief on December 2 at the same monthly salary as the fire chief, $650. Alley is a Pass Christian resident living at 204 East James Circle with his wife Dorothy.

Mayor Saucier said after the meeting that the reason for his request that all three names be rejected was that he felt the city could get a wider and better selection. He said of Alley, "I think we could have gotten someone a little more recent."

Wednesday morning Alley and Saucier met in the mayor's office. Saucier said after the meeting that it was a chance for them to get better acquainted and to exchange philosophies about city government.

EDWARD ALLEY, JR., process to wait for another list of candidates, and voted for Alley. Alley, who for 12 of his 16 years with

Alley named PC police chief

Monday night the Pass Christian city council named Edward Alley Jr., a 50 year-old retired New Orleans police officer, as its new police chief. The board's approval came in spite of Mayor Steve Saucier's request that all three candidates be rejected and the city readvertise for the position.

Logan moved that the board accept Alley as its new chief on the basis that he scored the highest on the civil service test, a point that Mayor Saucier had been quoted as saying was "just academic."

Neither of the other two candidates for the position, James I. Hanley or William Markopoulos, was mentioned in the discussion. Alderman Horace Necaise Jr. said that the six week certification system was too long a Man vs. Nature

Conservationist asks students for support

Conservationist Dr. Donald M. Bradburn encouraged students at Coast Episcopal High Tuesday to oppose a National Park Service proposal that would call for development of Horn and Petit Bois Islands.

Dr. Bradburn, a pathologist at Touro Infirmary in New Orleans and recipient of the First Annual Ansel Adams Award for Conservation Photography, presented to the students a slide show which depicted the natural beauty of the Gulf Islands National Seashore.

He spent considerable time on Horn Island photographs which showed such unique sights as the buckeye butterfly, snow geese, the night hawks, coffee-weed, and sea oats - all native to the islands.

Bradburn said that "Nature can survive itself", and he showed as proof slides of the islands after Hurricane Camille, which revealed the fresh tracks of rabbits. He showed photographs of animal species that man has endangered. The nesting Ospreys, for example, are dying off not because of any natural disasters but because of pesticide poisoning.

Bradburn also showed 1950 pictures of pelican nesting grounds on the islands; the last pelican nests were in 1962. He said ominously that the pelican "has become a monument of what happens when man puts all kinds of things together without knowing what's going to happen."

Repeatedly throughout the presentation, Bradburn stressed that nature can survive itself but it cannot survive man. Then he added, "More and more people have designs on these islands." He was referring to a Park Service proposal that would create a campground, a boat refuge, and a ferry dock on the last two remaining untouched islands - Horn and Petit Bois.

Bradburn said that the islands are open to everyone right now and that the Park Service proposal would only commercialize the area. He cited as an example Santa Rosa Island in Florida which now has a condominium, roads, bridges, and recreational development that has ruined the natural beauty.

Bradburn said that the Park Service must have a public hearing on its proposal before it can authorize such measures. He said that if enough people voice their opposition to the plan and insist upon the preservation of the islands as they are right now, the islands stand a good chance of being classified a wilderness and, therefore, exempt from any human development.

Bradburn also showed the students slides of the paintings of Walter Anderson. In Anderson's art is revealed the natural beauty of the islands. Bradburn said about this man: "He contributed a great deal to us all without taking anything away from them (the islands)," implying that man can still use the islands without changing them.

He said public opposition to the Park Service proposal "is the only way to save the islands for the next generation."

The public hearing on the future of the islands will be at 9 a.m. at the Community Center, 500 Howard Ave. in Biloxi. He said that those attending will have a chance to voice their opinion. However, he added, those who cannot make the meeting may write to: Hearing Officer, c/o Park Manager, Gulf Islands National Seashore, P. O. Drawer T, Ocean Springs, Miss., 38564. Deadline for acceptance of letters is January 2.

Bradburn also encouraged those interested to express their opinions to Representative Trent Lott, because Park Service proposal requires an act of Congress.

Obituary for oaks

Highway Dept. official okayed tree removal

by David Pierson
Long Beach Bureau

Public furor over the removal last week of two oak trees from the median of Highway 90 in Pass Christian was followed by confusion and controversy over who actually authorized the removal.

However, the Echo has learned that the decision to remove the half-century-old trees originated not with the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce nor with the Parkway Commission but with the Highway Department.

Monday Joe Davis, assistant district construction engineer, admitted that he ordered the removal of the trees because "It was necessary to accommodate future traffic flow."

The controversy came on the heels of numerous complaints to the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce and City Hall, members of the Parkway Commission, and the Highway Dept. Several Pass Christian residents protested, saying, "We don't pull down trees in Pass Christian, we plant them." Some irate citizens even resorted to hanging signs on the trees that read: "I was murdered."

But the question of whodunit was left unanswered as each official group pointed to the other.

The Parkway Commission, which is in charge of beautification of the beach road, denied reports that it had approved the plans to remove the trees and lengthen the east-bound turnoff bay on Henderson Avenue. Mrs. Louis Crawford of Long Beach, a member of that commission, said that she had seen the plans for the highway work now being done, but no trees were supposed to be removed.

Ricky Lee of the highway department who had been quoted in another newspaper as saying that the commission had seen the plans complained that that newspaper had quoted him out of context. Lee agreed with Mrs. Crawford that the Parkway Commission did not see the plans that called for the tree removals.

Mrs. Crawford said that when the other commission members met with Jack Green of the highway department Friday, Green told them that the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce had requested the turnoff lane extension.

Chamber of Commerce President Russell Ringer, however, denied ever having made such a request. He said that the chamber had requested a turn off bay for west-bound traffic because there is none. Ringer said that he was asked by the highway department three weeks ago about the possibility of extending the turnoff bay for east-bound traffic, but he said that he did not approve of the plan. "They (the highway department) said nothing else to me about it."

Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier said that his office had not requested the turn off bay either. He said that he also had requested a turnoff bay for Highway 90 west-bound traffic at Henderson Avenue because that road would lead directly to the proposed site for the duPont Chemical Plant. Saucier said that his only other request was for additional parking space along the seaway.

Then perhaps the highway department or Bond Paving Company (which is doing the highway work) made a mistake when they read the plans? No. The highway department says that it plans eventually to construct a turnoff bay for west-bound traffic. The plans were not misread; someone requested the extension of the east-bound turnoff bay.

Jack Green reiterated Monday that the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce had requested the extended turnoff bay. However, he admitted that he was not sure, because he received his authorization to construct the bay from highway department official Joe Davis in Hattiesburg.

Under questioning, Davis finally admitted that "As far as requesting the turnoff bay (for east-bound traffic), I am sure the Chamber of Commerce did not request it." When asked then who requested the turnoff bay and the removal of the trees, Davis answered, "Let's just say the highway department made the decision." When asked who in the highway department made the decision, Davis responded, "I am the one who thought it ought to be done, and there were others who agreed with me."

He said that the reason for his decision was that the chamber had shown to him an anticipated increase in traffic flow because of the duPont plant. Davis said that the left hand turnoff bay was necessary to accommodate the future traffic because the present turnoff bay can only accommodate two cars.

Davis revealed that he had not visited the site and that he was under the impression that the trees were not too big when he ordered their removal. He said that Green was the one who had described the trees as not being a factor.

One question remained: Why weren't city officials at least notified of the plans to remove the trees? Davis said that the highway department has the right to remove the trees if it so desires. He also said that the trees were too large to be replanted.

So the trees were caught in the middle. They were too small to be of consequence when planning the turnoff bay, and they were too big to be transplanted.

Bertha Littel of the Pass Christian Garden Club agreed with the highway department's conclusion that the trees would probably not survive if they were transplanted. To avoid future dilemmas of this kind Mrs. Littel said that she is busy trying to register the centuries-old oak trees in the city and along the highway. She said that she has sent a letter to the highway department requesting that they help her in registering the trees; however, she was not confident that the department would comply with her request. Even if the trees are registered, she explained, the department could still remove the trees. However, it might mean that the department would at least have to forewarn the local citizenry.

So, two oaks that have withstood the ravages of natural disasters such as Canale have fallen to the more devastating force known as progress. An obituary for the trees might read: "They stood against the elements but fell to the chemicals (cor-

Past year one of most productive for Health Dept.

Fiscal Year 1973-74 was one of the most productive years ever for the State Board of Health and local county health department in rendering service to Mississippians, according to Dr. Alton R. Cobb, State Health "It was an exceptionally productive year for all phases of public health work in Mississippi," Dr. Cobb said. "It was also a year of change and redirection for the State Board of Health, with organizational revisions initiated to build a more efficient operating base, with changes in program structures and additional emphasis placed on the delivery of direct services to Mississippians."

He indicated that total agency funding was increased from $18,878,472 during FY1972-73 to $23,802,774 during FY1973-74.

"We're very fortunate in Mississippi to have state legislators who are interested in the health care of our state's citizens and it is primarily through their concern, hard work, and cooperation, that we can report such a successful year for public health work in the state."

According to Dr. Cobb, divisions and units at the state level were regrouped and structured into eight bureaus. Plans were also implemented to create eleven district offices following the Governor's Planning and Development Districts. When fully operational, these district offices will insure a more effective and efficient delivery system.

"Last year saw an expansion of our maternal and child health program through new federal appropriations and the development of a program of projects requiring each state MCH Program to have demonstration projects including maternal and infant care, intensive newborn care, children and youth, family planning, and dental services," he said.

"We also saw the expansion of our family planning program with 74,000 women now enrolled," he added. "We saw a continued fall in the birth rate associated with the expanded family planning program; a management study of our Crippled Children's Services, and additional state funding for cystic fibrosis and hemophilia programs."

He noted that through the venereal disease program, 11,839 persons were treated for gonorrhea and 628 persons were treated for syphilis throughout the state.

The Public Health Laboratory continued to provide laboratory services at a lower unit cost than any of Mississippi's neighboring states and the laboratory processed almost one million specimens last year.

"Another important area of work was in our solid waste program," he said. "Projects have already been established in 14 counties with 20 additional counties awaiting equipment. And, of course, the Bureau of Environmental Health continued their regular sampling and testing of public water supplies, milk products, and Gulf Coast seafood."

"One of the largest and most productive programs maintained was the home health program in which patients are provided home nursing care," he said. "Last year the 349 public health nurses throughout the state made approximately 50,000 skilled nursing visits to home health patients in addition to their regular work in other ongoing health department programs."

The State Board of Health and the Bureau of Licensure and Certification were given new authority to include standards for ambulances and training of emergency medical technicians for Emergency Medical Services. Some 843 child care facilities were licensed; 186 received initial licenses; and 211 were closed licenses were granted to 142 qualified nursing care facilities and 354 health care facilities including home health agencies, independent laboratories, and rehabilitation centers. Some 282 medical licenses were issued bringing the total licensed physicians to 2,079—a net gain of 44. Three medical licenses were suspended and/or revoked.

"We also saw the creation of the new mental health agency by the State Legislature," he said. "During the last year that our agency operated field mental health clinics, 8,644 patients received direct service."

"In the area of administrative services, a computerized payroll system was developed, a computer system for family planning data was initiated as well as a central computer listing of all foodhandling establishments in the state," he added. "More than seven million vital records are on file dating from 1912 and in an effort to reduce storage and provide faster retrieval service, the microfilming of these documents is currently underway."

"Although this is by no means a total picture of our activities during last year, the information provided does give an overall view of the agency's work," he added. "We're proud of the work that we have accomplished during the past year," said Dr. Cobb. "And we hope to continue the expansion of services to Mississippians during the next year."

Regulations amended

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) today amended the regulations for food stamp and food distribution programs with respect to institutions and Title VII nutrition programs for the elderly.

The major modifications give the State Agency on Aging the responsibility for estimating the number of meals to be served to Title VII nutrition programs within the State during the year, and for determining the food needs of individual programs. Distributing agencies are required to allocate funds in accordance with such needs. Proposed changes were published for public comment in the Federal Register of Oct. 1 (USDA press release 2306-74). No objections to the proposed amendments were received, and no changes were made in the food stamp program proposals; however, several changes in the food distribution proposals were made after consultation with the Commissioner on Aging. The final regulations will be published in the Federal Register of Friday, November 8, and will be effective immediately upon publication.

Latin students need families

More than 1,200 high school students from Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela will be arriving in the U. S. in January.

These students are participating in the Youth for Understanding International Student Exchange Program, one of three programs in this country for high school students which works in co-operation with the United States State Department. They will live and study here for six months. Youth for Understanding is inviting families interested in opening their homes to these young students to write for applications.

We can never understand the nature of another country until we come to see it in that country's terms and experiences; consequently, Youth for Understanding feels that host families provide the key to better international understanding. The daily living experience encountered by the student through his new family gives him an insight and awareness of the U. S. that is difficult to duplicate.

Being a host family means sharing daily activities, plans, and ideas with a high school student from another country. These students are eager to experience life with an American family. As they grow to know one another, gradually the family and the students become more aware of each other's culture. Along with the family living arrangements, the students enroll in local high schools, and take part in school and community activities.

The host family may find its life enriched as each member gains something special from the new family member: they are able to discover and investigate other parts of the world through the experience of their "son" or "daughter"; bridges of communication are built across language and cultural barriers; and the living experience can make it possible for the family and the exchange student to see and understand their own country through another's eyes. By the end of their stay, new and lasting friendships have been created reaching into many corners of the world.

Families interested in sharing their homes with an international high school exchange student should contact the Youth for Understanding Area Representative at Box 514, Pass Christian, Miss. 39571 or telephone 255-1493.

Indian culture

Getting the feel of Indian culture and customs, these young first graders at North Bay Elementary School began a study of Indian lore this week as a prelude to the Thanksgiving Day celebration. A highlight of the special study was construction of the teepee, background above, and Indian headaddresses that the children made themselves, under the direction of their teacher, Laurie Uram.

Ethel and Albert comedies are crowd pleasers at Bay theatre

Three episodes of light comedy brought down the curtain on the 1974 season at the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre. The show, taken from the "Ethel and Albert" series of radio and early television fame, by Peg Lynch, included very true-to-life situations portrayed by three different Ethel and Albert teams.

Credited by Mary Carter, whose keen sense of timing was once again very evident (theatre buffs will remember her direction of "The Odd Couple" and "Everybody Loves Opal"), the cast kept up a delightful pace throughout the evening.

"To Open, Pry Cover" featured Karen Smith and Al Carlson as Ethel and Albert Arbuckle number one, and starred an obstinate jar of pickles! Al's portrayal of the struggle of man vs. pickle jar cover was most convincing. One felt the urge to call out encouragement to him! Karen acted the part of the exasperated wife right down to the clenched teeth and was good, as always. Ted Stechmann made a brief appearance as the delivery-man with an unusual entrance from the lobby, complete with postal whistle.

Ethel and Albert number two were Alice and John Holmes making their stage debut in this episode, and Victor Frankiewicz as whistling Virgil Bemis in "What's That Tune?". The plot involved figuring out the elusive name of a melody whistled by Virgil and had some very funny moments. A surprise reaction occurred during the final performance when one of the stage lights shattered following a rousing chorus of "Let the Rest of the World Go By" in which the actors hit some unusual notes!

The sketch was well received, especially a well-timed telephone conversation executed smoothly by Vic Frankiewicz.

"Just a Little Something for Christmas" featured Frances Frankiewicz and Ed Craig as Ethel and Albert number three coping with the problem of the unexpected Christmas gift and nothing on hand with which to reciprocate.

Mark Horne as Fred, bearer of the unplanned gift, is an experienced thespian, having worked professionally with the Little Theatre in Baton Rouge as well as in DeKalb, Georgia. Mark also taught in the Theatre Department at Towson State College in Baltimore.

The pairing of two such versatile players as Frances and Ed can only result in superb performance which was enhanced by Skippy, an adorable pup who, aided by the technical crew, performed admirably.

Mike Cuevas, producer, can be proud of this production, which offered entertainment suitable for children as well as adults. Assisting Mrs. Cuevas on the technical staff were the technical director, David Hubbard; publicity, Gertrude Stanton; make-up, Rubie Chapman; hospitality, Jean Gleim; and props, Richard Hubbard, Betty Cuevas and Mary Kay Benvenuti.

Attractive floral decorations for holiday festivities designed by Loraine Flower Shops were displayed in the lobby.

"In Performance at Wolf Trap," ETV's "Special of the Week," will turn to old-time New Orleans jazz with a rousing concert by the Preservation Hall Jazz Band at 7 p.m., November 30, on the Mississippi Educational Television Network.

The concert can be seen on channels 19, Biloxi; 12, Booneville; 17, Bude; 23, Greenwood; 29, Jackson; 14, Meridian; 2, Mississippi State; and 18, Oxford-University.

The concert was taped at the Wolf Trap Farm for the Performing Arts near Washington, D.C., and is presented on ETV under a grant from the Atlantic Richfield Company.

"It was a wild show," David Prowitt, executive producer of the series, said. "Half-way through, the audience rushed up onto the stage and stayed there to dance, listen and cheer."

At the end, the Preservation Hall Band played, "When the Saints Go Marchin' In," trouped off the stage and led the huge crowd of jazz fans in an impromptu parade around the Filene Center Auditorium.

The band's style, according to a review in the Washington Post, "was perfect."

And little wonder. The band's five regular members combine more than 350 years experience as musicians. They play the traditional dixieland tunes - "Careless Love," "Hold That Tiger," "Bye and Bye," "Basin Street Blues." And they play them in the authentic New Orleans style.

The regular members of the Preservation Hall Jazz Band include: "Sing" Miller, piano; Percy Humphrey, trumpet; Willie Humphrey, clarinet; "Big Jim" Robinson, trombone; and Josiah "Cie" Frazier, drums.

In addition, Allan Jaffe, the young market researcher who helped establish Preservation Hall, joined the regular members of the band and played tuba.

The band has appeared on many commercial television specials, was in the movie, "The Cincinnati Kid," and gives concerts across the nation, including one recently in Jackson, Mississippi.

The Preservation Hall Jazz Band is one of seven groups that appears at Preservation Hall in New Orleans. The hall - a small old carriage house in the city's Storyville district - holds only 100 people (and 60 of them have to stand).

Founded in 1961, Preservation Hall was designed as a place where "old-time New Orleans musicians could go to play."

Coast students attend drama production

A group of 69 members of the faculty and students of St. John's High School left Gulfport Nov. 6 in a caravan of cars bound for Hattiesburg to attend a production of "Fiddler on the Roof" by the drama department of the University of Southern Mississippi.

The drama caravan was one of several such trips planned for St. John's students by Charles Lembright, chairman of the high school's drama department.

The young students thoroughly enjoyed the trip as well as the production and gave the USM cast a standing ovation at curtain.

The next caravan planned under the school's cultural enrichment program is to Perkinson Junior College. Dec. 5 to attend a USM production of "Godspell". Some 100 students are expected to attend, Lembright said.

Information booklet on state now at Library

The Honorable Heber Leamer, Secretary of State for Mississippi at the request of the Gulf Coast Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution has delivered to the Bay St. Louis City-County Public Library booklets entitled Souvenir of Mississippi.

The attractive booklet has a full-color Mississippi Coat of Arms on the front cover and full color State Flag of Mississippi on the back cover. Contained in the 24 page pamphlet is State history in a concise and easy to locate form.

Would you like to review Mississippi's chain of title from the three powerful Indian tribes through Spanish, French, English, Mississippi Territory and finally the State of Mississippi? See page 23. Want to know why the Mockingbird became our state bird? And how the Magnolia was selected? Like to know the meaning of Mississippi and see its various spellings? The information is in the booklet!

When was Mississippi's state song adopted? Who wrote it? What are the words? See pages 12 and 13. Like to see a picture worthy of framing of our State Capitol? Want to know some facts about our state such as a list of all legal holidays, total area in square miles, population in 1970?

These salient and interesting facts are contained in Souvenir of Mississippi and in circulation to patrons of the City-County Public Library.

Du Pont plant in DeLisle

Economic potential on Gulf Coast outlined

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following address was made by William E. Sheehy, public affairs manager for E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., before the Gulf Coast Sales and Marketing Executives Club in Gulfport, Nov. 14. The address is reprinted in its entirety.)

It is a great pleasure to speak to the Gulf Coast Sales and Marketing Executive Club. The requested subject is the potential economic impact on the Gulf Coast from the plant DuPont proposes to build in Harrison County.

I want to first provide a few highlights about the Du Pont Company. Because this would be Du Pont's first plant in Mississippi, it would be presumptuous to assume much knowledge of the company on the part of Mississippians.

This highlighting of Du Pont will be followed by a brief description of the project proposed for the Gulf Coast. Next will come the promised economic discussion, drafted primarily from the economic facts as they have unfolded over the 17-year period of construction and operation of Du Pont's titanium dioxide plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

The New Johnsonville experience is stressed on the assumption of your agreement that performance carries more weight than promise. Obviously, no direct comparison may be made between a project begun in 1957 with one proposed for 1975. Such factors as the passage of time, the onset of inflation, variability of business cycles, and the general inability to foresee the future prevent precise comparison.

The New Johnsonville experience is offered; nevertheless, for two reasons: (1) it is a matter of record and not speculation and (2) the same company, policies, and product are involved.

The Mississippi project coordinator, Larry Kniffin, is here, and following my talk both he and I will welcome your comments and try to answer your questions.

The Du Pont Company and the Mississippi Gulf Coast share a common French heritage. Whereas Pierre le Moyne d'Iberville established a community in Mississippi in 1699, Eleuthere Irenee du Pont, also newly arrived from France, established a company at Wilmington, Del., in 1802.

The company bearing his name was primarily a manufacturer of explosives for about 100 years. The Du Pont Company didn't really begin much diversification until following World War I. Beginning in the 1930's, Du Pont scientists made a number of research breakthroughs which laid the groundwork for the company's current diversity. The best known among them was the discovery of nylon in 1938.

Today, Du Pont is the largest chemical company and the 16th largest corporation in the United States in terms of sales and the number of employees. Sales in 1973 were $5.3 billion and employees numbered 118,423. The company also has extensive manufacturing and marketing activities overseas. Du Pont is owned by 216,000 stockholders.

Among Du Pont's principal products are fibers, plastics, industrial chemicals, photo products, finishes, agricultural chemicals, instruments, electronic products, pharmaceuticals and pigments. Pigments placed last in the grouping to provide a transition from Du Pont per se to the project contemplated for the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Du Pont's principal pigment product is titanium dioxide - commonly called TiO₂. It is a nontoxic white powder used primarily to impart whiteness and brightness to paper, paint, plastics, textiles, and other products. As you already know, the company has announced its intent to build its fourth U.S. titanium dioxide plant on a 2200-acre site at the head of the Bay of St. Louis.

Du Pont's three titanium dioxide plants are at Edge

Moor, Del.; New Johnsonville, Tenn.; and Antioch, Calif.

Investment in the Mississippi plant will be $125 million plus. It is expected to be operational by 1977 and to initially employ between 500 and 600 persons, about 85 percent of whom would be from the Gulf area. The plant is being undertaken with expansion in mind. Expansion would create additional employment opportunities to an ultimate potential of between 1,000 and 1,200.

Those are some project essentials. Before continuing our discussion of the Mississippi project, however, I am asking you to mentally regress with me to the year 1952 and to travel to a location

80 miles west of Nashville. We are looking over an area of slashed over fields and scrub trees fronting on the east bank of Kentucky Lake. We are visiting an area of year-round fishing and other water sports and recreation.

As beautiful and bountiful as the area might have appeared to a hunter or a fisherman, it was also true that the area was one of relative economic depression.

We see some men talking near the lake shore. They have no rifles or fishing rods. They are from Wilmington, Del. We can't today reconstruct their conversation, but we know it became their consensus to buy

1,500 acres of land for a future

DuPont plant site.

There is a quiet period of three years. Then, in 1955, a

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

"Little drops of water, Tiny grains of sand..."

We seldom think of music in such plebeian terms as sand and water. We listen to a symphony orchestra or a pop band, and our ears are titivated by pleasant sounds, and we admire the skill of the instrument players and the adroitness of the composer. But we almost never consider the amount of physical labor involved in producing the music.

Not long ago we listened to a performance by the Boston Symphony orchestra of a piano concerto by Brahms. It lasted approximately forty minutes. During that time the musicians, including the pianist, played many thousands of notes of music--and all of those notes had previously been written down on paper by one individual, the composer, Brahms.

Further, the composer had written not just one "theme", but had marked the notes played by each section of the accompanying instruments, so that he had, in fact, manually inscribed the notes of perhaps a dozen simultaneous concertos, each of several thousand separate notes.

The labor involved in doing this job must have been tremendous. Allowing for the utmost skill and facility of the composer, it must have required many hundreds of hours of physical labor just to put on paper these many thousands of notes.

We well remember a time when we rode in a taxi with the noted modern composer, Ferde Grofe, when he was working on his fine composition, the Grand Canyon Suite. Unwilling to take any time off from his work, even tho the taxi ride was a necessary business item, Grofe brought along his notebook and pencil, and during the twenty-five-minute trip -- and while conversing steadily with us -- he inscribed several sheets of his Suite.

Writing thousands of notes -- the little grains of sand -- for a dozen sections of the orchestra, marking the tempi and forte for each section, runs the job of composition into many hours of physical efforts; painstaking and repetitious rehearsals by the conductor and the full orchestra combine to make the production of a symphony a truly herculean task.

And, speaking of music, have you ever consciously noted the background music of a big motion picture? Here we have many of the elements of a symphonic work: the composing of music to meet and emphasize the mood of each scene of the movie, the same physical writing of thousands of notes for various sections of the orchestra, and in addition, the timing of the music to fit each section of the picture -- truly a mammoth job, for which the composer usually receives little credit and less praise.

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

LAME DUCK LEGISLATION

Waiting last week for the curtain to go up on the final "lame-duck" days of this 93rd Congress, I wondered if we're really braced for the flood of legislation still awaiting action in the House.

I came to the quick conclusion that we're in for some stormy days before Christmas.

Before we look at what remains to be done, however, let's glance briefly at some of the major legislation enacted into law by this Congress. I think we need also to look at legislation we've already killed or temporarily sidelined.

The 93rd Congress, no doubt, will be remembered as the proponent of campaign spending reform and minimum wage increase reform. To put it in a nutshell, if it existed, Congress probably reformed it this year.

example. And what about increases in veterans benefits, legal services for the poor, extension of education aid, the farm subsidy program, the Omnibus housing program, or the elderly aid package?

Like it or not, those were all chalked up by the 93rd Congress.

This Congress did not pass legislation to establish a consumer protection agency. I, likewise, did not pass land use measures, national health insurance, no-fault automobile insurance, and the newsman's shield law.

And unless someone tries to muster the forces for another run at a pay raise, perhaps we'll be remembered as the legislators who refused to grant ourselves a congressional pay hike.

As far as the remaining days of this session are concerned, we have our work cut out for us. Any way you slice it, in fact, we will be faced with some tough decisions.

For starters, we will be considering foreign aid and at least five appropriations bills. In other words, we'll be looking at several billion dollars.

Also on the docket for immediate action are such issues as tax reform, safe drinking water legislation, and president Ford's spending cutbacks. Add another controversial issue like the anti-inflation surtax and you can see the potential for some rather heated debate.

And then there is the Rockefeller nomination.

I have some very serious questions in of my main concerns is how he can assure the American people that he can become Vice President of the United States and not have a conflict of interest with former political and financial involvements throughout the world.

Unless he can answer this to the satisfaction of the American people, I doubt that his nomination will be confirmed by the Congress.

I think you will agree that the House and the Senate have a lot of unfinished business to straighten out before we finally adjourn in late December. I hope Congress is prepared for the task.

'Tis the season to mail early.

before Dec. 15 for cards.

THE SLEEPING GIANT AWAKES

Our Readers Write

Dear Sir:

Please, any who are interested in duPont becoming a part of our community - say so! Let me or the Chamber of Commerce hear from you. I can't believe that we don't have hundreds who are interested in the growth of Hancock County as opposed to those who would destroy our chances of having a blue chip, prestige industry locate here.

Many of us have kept up with duPont's effort to be absolutely sure that they do not destroy our balance of nature and we have faith that our local, state, and federal agencies are as interested in Mississippi as we are. They will protect our environment to the best of their ability and I am sure that duPont will work with them and with us to our mutual benefit.

Our local public officials do all they can with the tax money we provide. From my experience working for another blue chip, prestige industry - General Electric - these companies are interested in the areas where they have personnel. I am sure that their presence will up grade salaries, job opportunities, United Fund giving, relieve our tax burden, provide knowledgeable citizens, and in general add positively to our community. My feeling is that we should all welcome a good, clean industry into our community.

Be counted as one who is interested in progress - clean, non-polluting progress. duPont will provide this I am sure. Send me or the Chamber a post card with your name and address so we can assure duPont that as long as they will continue to cooperate with our officials and are willing to provide our area with a clean plant - we welcome them.

Yours truly,

Dear Sir:

In taking advantage of this medium to reach the general public, we, the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., find that our work is greatly facilitated. We do not wish to impose upon good nature but the blessing of a channel of communication is one we sorely need to enable us to reach out and encompass the residents of Hancock County.

People are beginning to understand our aims and are calling upon us for more and varied kinds of assistance. We are happy about this. Especially are we pleased when we can fulfill the public's wishes for this is why we came into being. To fill a need. Even the fact that our work is considered controversial meets with our approval as, at least, it acknowledges our existence.

There are, however, some who still do not take us seriously. Those who when they meet our officers or our workers in public places, greet these individuals with derogatory remarks, such as "here comes the dog (cat) lady". Or, they make the sounds of a barking dog or meowing of a cat. A charitable interpretation of these insults is that perhaps this is done in jest by people who have not mastered the art of polite and intelligent conversation and who still wish to have something to say. We understand and make allowances.

But, what do strangers think? Many times our representatives are with people who are from an out-of-state humane group. When we are with business contacts on an equal footing in a serious endeavor, just think how embarrassing it is to meet one of the local people who barks at us when we pass! How can we sensibly explain such an act? It casts the residents of the whole community in a most unfavorable light.

Anyone who wishes to contact us can have access to our files pertaining to the role of humane societies or related groups, in every city, town, community of the United States, where people are educated, intelligent and far-thinking. Control of animals, their humane treatment, is of universal concern. Anywhere that you find thinking people, those who feel compassion for the less fortunate, those who see animal welfare as part of a whole picture for the betterment of mankind, there you will find a closely knit group of humanitarians who put this facet of life in with the other worthy endeavors of their community. To us, our work is as serious as any other, regardless. We are business people. For, as animal control is re-lated, so is the well being of the entire area.

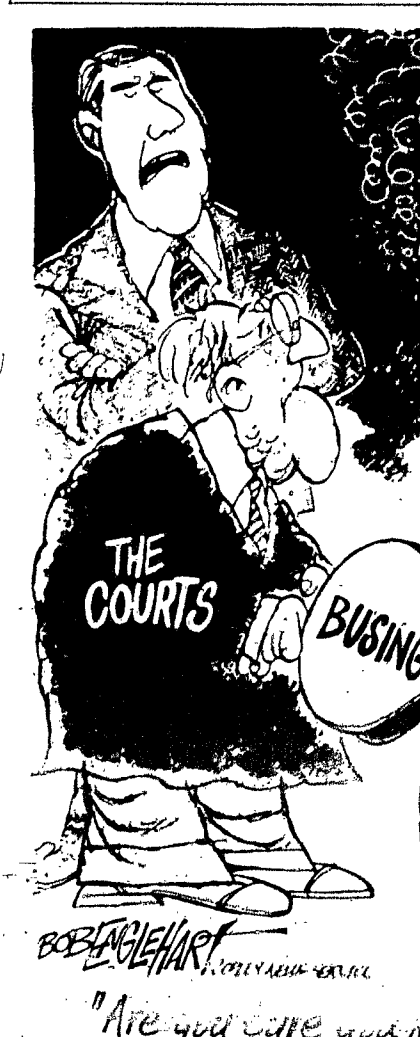

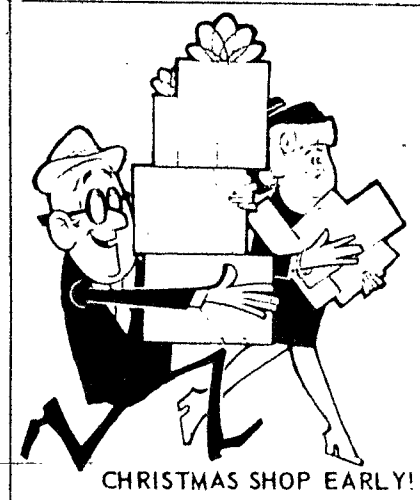

We have had individuals call to ask us before moving into our community to give a detailed account of what steps are taken in this respect, simply because they do not wish to choose a city that allows dogs to roam at large and be a nuisance to everyone concerned. As a recent caller said, "But then, neither do I want to live in a place that treats animals in a cruel, inhumane manner. I want part of my tax money to go to sound, planned animal control".

Some of these callers are moving from a city where such a program is in force and they are looking to find a new place of residence with the same system.

It may be that the citizens of Hancock County have grown accustomed to living in an area where stray, and sometimes pet dogs roam at large tearing up flower beds, using others' lawns as their bathroom, turning over garbage cans, tearing clothes off the lines, barking all night keeping people awake, or - cats walk over cars parked in yards, tear the upholstery in boats that are kept in carports (these are only a small sample of the complaints we get), but many newcomers are not accustomed to these nuisances. These families moved here from areas where an active humane group is supported and respected. Our work is important, both to the animals' welfare and the humans with whom they necessarily come in contact.

Mississippi receives much adverse publicity. Our critics, the kindest of them - say we are a poor state, an uneducated, backward, ignorant one. The more outspoken speak more harshly of us than that. To the people of our area - Hancock County - may we suggest - do not earn any of this description in relation to us and our work. Be tolerant of those who express themselves in a manner different from yours. We are business people, treat us as such. If you do not agree, then at least remain silent. It will be deeply appreciated and it will speak well of you.

Sincerely,
BAY-WAVELAND

Statement of position

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce would like, at this time, to re-affirm its welcome to the duPont Chemical Company and looks forward to the opening of the plant in West Harrison County which will provide jobs to our area that are so desperately needed.

We feel that duPont and the regulatory agencies of our government, at all levels, will be looking out for our best interests in the area of environmental and ecological well-being, and we can foresee only growth and prosperity for Hancock County through duPont's decision to locate this facility in our area.

VA News

Make certain the right person is beneficiary on your GI insurance policy, is the Veterans Administration reminder to five million veterans covered under its government life insurance program.

Otherwise, you may add to emotional stress of survivors when it is discovered the intended beneficiary was not named on the policy, assistant director for Regional Office, Merlyn J. Cook explained.

In such cases, VA is obligated by law to pay insurance proceeds to the beneficiary of record. Most of the Agency's insureds are World War II veterans who carry National Service Life Insurance.

The problem of insurance benefits going to an unintended recipient arises in most instances because the veteran simply never gets around to changing his beneficiary, Cook said.

In a typical case, the veteran named his mother as beneficiary when he first took out his policy. When he married, he forgot to notify VA that he wished to change his beneficiary. Besides emotional stress, the result often is unwarranted financial hardship, especially for his widow and young children.

Cook urges any veteran who wishes to ascertain or change his beneficiary to contact the VA insurance center to which he pays his premiums - either in Philadelphia or St. Paul. Be sure to provide as much information as possible, including policy number, full name and address, Cook advises.

plant for the manufacture of titanium dioxide is authorized for this site in Humphreys County. Then come two years of study and planning.

In 1957, construction begins. So does an economic infusion, as the construction payroll totals $10,490,000. There have been few years since in the 15-year production period at New Johnsonville when a production expansion, with a consequent construction payroll, was not under way.

But the most impressive economic effects from the plant at New Johnsonville are not really from construction payroll, though these are substantial. They are from the job opportunities created by production expansion, the increase in wages, and the increase from purchases of goods and services for the plant within Tennessee, since the plant began production in 1959.

Here are the key numbers: For 1959, the plant employed 381 persons, had a payroll of $2.3 million, and made purchases of $1 million within Tennessee.

Here are the comparable figures for 1974: The plant employs 905 persons, has a payroll of approximately $12 million, and makes yearly purchases of about $14 million within Tennessee.

During this 15-year period, production capacity rose five fold - from the initial 45,000 tons to the current 228,000 tons. At the same time, payroll rose more than five times and purchases of goods and services within Tennessee nearly 14 times. Of course, we recognize the presence of inflation in both the payroll and purchases numbers.

The total wages and salaries paid to New Johnsonville plant employees, from 1959 through 1974, will have been approximately $75 million. Add the approximately $75 million. Add the approximately $27 million in construction labor costs, including initial construction and five expansions, and the result is about $102 million in payroll since construction started in 1957.

Goods and services purchased within Tennessee in this 1959 through 1974 period will be approximately $75 million.

Construction payroll, operating payroll, and goods and services purchased within Tennessee since 1957 total about $177 million.

It is not surprising that the economy of Humphreys County, where the plant is actually located and where about half of the employees live, has made a significant improvement since 1959. Its per capita income was $1,401 in 1959. By 1971, the latest year for which reliable information is available, it has risen to $3,175. It has presumably kept on increasing in the last three years.

The actual impact extends beyond the actual county of plant location. Neighboring Benton County, where about 25 per cent of plant employees live, had a per capita income of $985 in 1958. It had risen to $2,441 by 1971.

Improvement in per-capita income has been tangibly reflected in growth and improvement in public schools, housing, shopping and banking facilities, medical institutions and services, churches, libraries, and other public and private institutions.

This increase in income and amenities cannot be attributed exclusively to the construction and operation of the titanium dioxide plant. But a plant of that scope is an obviously significant factor in such community improvement. This can be readily documented.

Economists have a very good idea of the manner in which income is actually used. Here is what happens to $12,000,000, the plant's projected 1974 payroll.

assuming the use of money by families in New Johnsonville, Tenn., is approximately the same as the average for the United States.

They spend $3 million for food. The next biggest item is housing on which they spend $2.76. Transportation takes $840,000. Another $960,000 goes for clothing. Medical care absorbs $480,000 and personal care $240,000. A miscellaneous category, including such expenses as education and recreation, takes $840,000. Personal financial items such as savings and life insurance account for $720,000. Six hundred thousand dollars flows to Social Security. Residents of Tennessee are presumed to be as familiar with the tax collector as you and I. And so $1.56 finds its way to local, state, and federal taxes.

No long discourse on the spending of about $14 million for goods and services within Tennessee is forthcoming. But it is interesting to note that about 70 suppliers in the New Johnsonville vicinity and about 400 suppliers elsewhere in the state shared in this business.

A few examples from the New Johnsonville area: $2.8 million with a local trucking company; $400,000 with a pipe and valve supply company; $400,000 with a firm for motor parts and bearings; $288,000 with a company for making wood pallets; $200,000 with a company to clean settling ponds; $150,000 with a small contractor for such work as replacing bricks and cleaning sewer lines; $145,000 with a small chemical manufacturer; a small tool and die manufacturer, $75,000; bulldozer owner and operator for cleaning ditches, $44,000.

We'll end this purchasing section with two more examples: a small New Johnsonville hardware store, $32,000. Seems the sophisticated manufacturing plant needs a few gallons of paint and a few nuts and bolts just like a home handyman. I thought the next example unusual, but don't have a yearly figure. Three area restaurants which serve food to people at the plant working overtime bill the plant about $300 for a month which has required very little overtime work and as much as $4,000 for a month which has required much overtime work.

Perhaps that is a minor note on which to end the New Johnsonville economic story, but it illustrates the diversity of the local business structure which benefits from a sizable manufacturing plant.

I'm asking your indulgence again on a mental excursion of considerably less time and distance. It is 1972. We are standing under some trees on the western edge of Harrison County, on the Bay of St. Louis, near the community of Delisle. We are standing in an area of year-round fishing and other water sports and recreation.

As beautiful and as bountiful as the area might have appeared to a hunter or a fisherman, it was also true that many people in the general area were still struggling to recover from a disastrous hurricane which had devastated the area three years earlier.

We see some men talking near the bay shore. They have no rifles or fishing rods. They are from Wilmington, Del. We can today reconstruct some of their conversation, because one of them is with us this evening.

This conversation leads to optioning of 2,200 acres over 1973 and 1974 as well as confirmation in November, 1973 that Du Pont expects to invest in excess of $100 million to build a large titanium dioxide plant on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. This confirmation is followed in July, 1974 by the announcement that the project scope has been increased to more than $125 million.

Dupont expects to begin construction on the Harrison County plant site early in 1975.

It is expected that approximately 20 per cent of the total project's cost will be in construction labor. A consequent rock bottom estimate of this labor payroll would be

$25 million over a 30-month period, or at the rate of $10 million a year for the construction period. We say "rock bottom" because one reason for the

"plus" following the acknowledged $125 million is the escalating costs for plant equipment during this inflationary period. Today's construction dollar buys only half of what it bought five years ago. The Mississippi project task force is working hard to keep costs under

FOREST MANAGEMENT
The United States can double timber production by the year 2020 through intensification of forest management nationwide.

Editor's Note: This is the second of three articles on the problems facing the families of retarded children.

ELGIN, Ill. — Approximately 4 per cent of the mentally retarded in this country are institutionalized or residential.

Tony Concotelli is one of them. He was placed in Dixon State Hospital by his parents three years ago.

He is 12 years old and his form of retardation has been undiagnosed.

"We are not a bit ashamed; it was the right move," said his father, Richard, of Elgin. "He's not a poor, forgotten child. He's loved and happy."

The more profoundly retarded the child, the likelier he will be placed in a residential home.

"Still, it wasn't the easiest thing in the world," Richard said.

"The first thing that came to mind was I'm going to have to give him up to an institution and I didn't want to," Mrs. Concotelli explained.

The couple has three older children, ages 18, 16 and 14. They said they didn't think they ever had a problem with the other children, so far as Tony was concerned.

"We didn't act ashamed, and so they didn't. He was treated as normally as possible."

They said they placed Tony in an institution when he was 9 years old because he became too hard to handle.

Prior to that, he attended Beverly Lake School for the Retarded.

"We couldn't function as a family unit," they said. "I lost the ball. I knew he was strong at 9, so at 21 he would be even stronger," Rosemary said. If Tony wasn't in school, he wasn't happy. The family couldn't go shopping together; he became destructive; his attention span was low, he would wake at 2 in the morning and arouse the family.

No medication was given to him, they said, because the doctors told them if he "was doped up, he couldn't learn."

At first, the Concotellis looked for a private residential home to place Tony. People at the Read Zone Center asked them to look into Dixon State Hospital.

"I said, 'Over my dead body,'" said Rosemary, but when they did go there, they saw the kids were healthy, the place was "extremely clean" and there were play areas.

When Dixon was checked out, it was a family affair. It was a heartrending decision, but the family realized that environment would be the best.

The Concotellis also realized they were devoting most of their time to Tony even though they had other children.

"The three kids we have are entitled to healthy, normal lives. They shouldn't be saddled with the responsibility of Tony," in the event of their death.

Although relatives and neighbors accepted Tony, the relatives were relieved when he was placed in Dixon.

One of the grandfathers wondered later how the family coped with the situation for so many years.

"We didn't realize how bad the situation at home was before. It took a lot of readjustment for us after."

Now, they have extra time to listen and do things with their other children — "To enjoy the other kids."

"The first thing that came to mind was I'm going to have to give him up to an institution and I didn't want to," Mrs. Concotelli explained.

The couple has three older children, ages 18, 16 and 14. They said they didn't think they ever had a problem with the other children, so far as Tony was concerned.

"We didn't act ashamed, and so they didn't. He was treated as normally as possible."

They said they placed Tony in an institution when he was 9 years old because he became too hard to handle.

Prior to that, he attended Beverly Lake School for the Retarded.

"We couldn't function as a family unit," they said. "I lost the ball. I knew he was strong at 9, so at 21 he would be even stronger," Rosemary said. If Tony wasn't in school, he wasn't happy. The family couldn't go shopping together; he became destructive; his attention span was low, he would wake at 2 in the morning and arouse the family.

No medication was given to him, they said, because the doctors told them if he "was doped up, he couldn't learn."

At first, the Concotellis looked for a private residential home to place Tony. People at the Read Zone Center asked them to look into Dixon State Hospital.

"I said, 'Over my dead body,'" said Rosemary, but when they did go there, they saw the kids were healthy, the place was "extremely clean" and there were play areas.

When Dixon was checked out, it was a family affair. It was a heartrending decision, but the family realized that environment would be the best.

The Concotellis also realized they were devoting most of their time to Tony even though they had other children.

"The first thing that came to mind was I'm going to have to give him up to an institution and I didn't want to," Mrs. Concotelli explained.

Du Pont plant

control and keep the project profitable.

The majority of construction workers are expected to come from within 100 miles of the plant site, and the peak construction force of about 900 is expected to be reached late in 1976.

It is early to assess probable project spending for construction materials within Mississippi. Little factually can be said except that the company will make an effort to purchase construction materials locally whenever possible.

The operational phase of the plant is contemplated for 1977. Of the initial 500 to 600 employees, Du Pont forecasts that about 85 percent will be hired locally. Taking the conservative end of the range, 500, that means about 425 new jobs initially for area residents. It also means that about 75 persons already working with Du Pont, the majority of them in the manufacture of titanium dioxide, will become residents of the Gulf Coast. Many of them, together with families, likely will come to the Gulf Coast prior to 1977 to participate in pre-production phases of planning, construction, and training new employees.

While a precise payroll or purchases within Mississippi cannot be predicted for the contemplated plant, some observations about Du Pont in particular and about economic generalizations can be made. First, about Du Pont.

It is Du Pont's objective for each plant to maintain pay scales in the upper bracket of pay scales for comparable work in that labor supply area. In addition to salaries and wages, it is the company's objective to maintain an employee benefit program which is designed to help employees provide a reasonable measure of security for themselves and their families and which compares favorably with the programs of the more progressive large companies.

In fact, Du Pont's benefits program has an economic value of approximately one third of an individual employee's wage or salary. This benefits program remains under continuing review, and has had two substantial improvements — one involving retirement and the other a substantial increase in company contributions to an employee savings program — since 1973.

Now for a brief summary: The potential economic impact of the plant envisioned by the Du Pont Company for the Mississippi Gulf Coast is obviously substantial. The company has not speculated on precisely or even approximately what this might be, but has suggested broad economic rules of thumb which probably apply on the Gulf Coast about as they would elsewhere. Du Pont has presented as factual a general picture as it can reasonably assemble on the economic performance of its titanium dioxide plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

That documentation shows that the New Johnsonville plant began operations in 1959 with 381 employees, a first year payroll of $2.3 million, and first year Tennessee purchases of $1 million. We saw that by 1974 this plant had grown substantially in many ways — five times its initial production capacity; five times in payroll; and 14 times in purchases of goods and services within Tennessee.

Though able to relate this economic history of a titanium dioxide plant in Tennessee, we acknowledge limited ability to foresee the long term economic consequence of such a plant in Mississippi. But Du Pont has the conviction that the proposed plant is potentially profitable for both the Du Pont Company and Gulf area residents. The people in the Pigments Department must have felt that way about Tennessee 20 years ago.

The Board will pay the legal fees and will pay for the printing of the bonds (including the printing of the legal opinion thereon, if desired by the purchaser) and the cost of validation of the bonds. Delivery will be made to the purchaser within sixty days after the date of sale, at a place to be designated by the purchaser and without cost to the purchaser.

It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on said bonds, but neither the failure to print such numbers on any bond nor any error with respect thereto shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the purchaser thereof to accept delivery of and pay for said bonds in accordance with the terms of the purchase contract. All expenses in relation to the printing of CUSIP numbers on said bonds shall be paid for by the issuer; provided, however, that the CUSIP Service Bureau charge for the assignment of said numbers shall be paid for by the purchaser.

Citizen CCA Plan: Opportunities

By Jean Weathersby
CCA Director

With the cost of living sky-rocketing the way it is at present, it is almost a full time job just managing our homes and families. What is to become of all those non-profit organizations that provide so many needed services to the community? At present The Sea Coast Echo is offering each of the groups in West Harrison and Hancock Counties an opportunity to carry on their commendable work through CCA.

Community Club Awards has been around for over 20 years, and has in that time helped many clubs and organizations achieve their working goals by increasing their treasuries. The Sea Coast Echo will be making cash awards of $2,000 for needed area philanthropies. Make certain you earn your share!

Not too many of us like knocking on doors day after day trying to sell some little gadget in order to raise money for a group, now do many people like to have to put out extra $$$ every time they go to a meeting, but surely if our organizations are to work and achieve their goals, the first thing they need is money; CCA is a dignified, proven way to earn a part of that money with little extra effort.

Over 20 organizations in the Long Beach, Pass Christian area have already chosen CCA as a fund raiser for their club. CCA is now opening membership to Hancock County clubs. In spite of the fact that each of us still have to feed, clothe, and care for our families, we still have to maintain our homes. By saving advertiser proofs-of-purchase each week we can at the same time help our organizations to carry on organizational fund-raising aims.

The types of organizations already scheduled to participate in CCA range from Boy Scouts to Senior Citizens; the projects and goals vary from earning merit badges to feeding a starving child in some far off land.

Whatever your own group's goals may be, whatever the size of your membership, there is an opening available to you in the Community Club Campaign. Contact us today. We have speakers available to attend your next meeting to familiarize your membership with our program.

Importantly, CCA, through its competitive activity is a great molder of club team spirit so necessary to the successful completion of any worthwhile club project. Today, every club faces the challenge of stimulating its members; increasing club membership and participation in activities. The CCA plan is a worthwhile organizational benefit.

If you or your club are interested, call the Echo or Jean Weathersby 467-5474 or 863-4554, or fill out and mail the following application blank to me in care of The Sea Coast Echo.

Battle of the barristers highlights P.C. gymkhana

by Adoree Shortle
Echo News Editor

The Gulf Coast Pony Club Gymkhana, held at the Hancock County Fairgrounds as a post-Halloween diversion, turned out droves of young riders from a two-state area, and proved to be a unique and entertaining event for spectators.

Ten of the 11 scheduled classes were open to riders under 18, who, mounted on ponies and horses of every description, vied for first through fifth place ribbons in a bizarre series of mounted games.

Highlight of the entire evening was the Brewer's Stake race which turned into a battle of the barristers.

The Brewer's Stake was open only to "sober adults", according to the entry form, and required participants to race at a full gallop the length of the show ring, dismount, consume the contents of a can of beer as rapidly as possible, re-mount and race back to the starting line, still clutching the empty can.

This event drew the largest number of riders, mostly male and mostly fathers, few of whom had more than a passing knowledge of the equestrian arts.

Bay attorneys Bill Frisbie and Walter Gex lowered their mein of dignity long enough to enter, bent more on beating each other than any of the other participants.

All riders disappeared in a Hiroshima sized cloud of dust; there was a ferocious turmoil at the far end as riders, horses and beer cans went in all directions and shouts of "Whoa horse-STOP!" rose above the din of battle. Back at the finish line, Frisbie and Gex burst out of the dust cloud riding like Berbers. Although Frisbie came in fourth and Gex somewhere behind that, they ended in the top three by method of elimination (all the leading beer cans weren't empty). Which proved that all of an attorney's talents are not restricted to the court room.

Winners in the various classes were:

1) Costume Class - Best of all, Cindy Fitzpatrick, as the headless horseman.
2) Musical Mounting - (1) Jay Sandlin; (2) Neil Barrentine; (3) Lacy Steinreid; (4) Katherine Russ.
3) Egg & Spoon - 12 years and under - (1) Priscilla Snow; (2) Rachel Gex; (3) Kassie Haas; (4) Katherine Russ. Over 12 years - (1) Sandra Norman; (2) Lacy Steinreid; (3) Ginger Sandlin; (4) Karen Cole.
4) Sack Race - (1) Bruce Poyadou; (2) Lacy Steinreid; (3) Jay Sandlin; (4) Neil Barrentine.
5) Trail Class - (1) Vonceil Daniels; (2) Jay Sandlin; (3) Mary Schuengels; (4) Priscilla Snow.

6) Brewer's Stake - Mr. Lott.
7) Barrel Race - (1) Marion Maurigi; (2) Keith Lott; (3) Katherine Russ; (4) Jay Sandlin.

8) Potato Picking Scramble - 12 and under - (1) Tie, Katherine Russ, Keith Lott, and Cindy Fitzpatrick; (4) Todd Kershaw. Over 12 - (1) Tie, Neil Barrentine and Mary Schuengel; (3) Jay Sandlin; (4) Peaches Bargar.

9) Pole Bending - (1) Marion Maurigi; (2) Keith Lott; (3) Jay Sandlin; (4) Ginger Sandlin.

10) Gambler's Choice - A. Horses. (1) Ginger Sandlin; (2) Karen Cole; (3) Camille Clement; (4) Jay Sandlin. B

Ancient bones found down under

VICTORIA, Australia — Bones of a gigantic emu-like ground bird estimated to have been more than six feet tall have been unearthed from a swamp here. Among the thousands of 40,000-year-old bones of marsupials also found at the site were those of an extinct 10-foot-tall kangaroo, giant wombat-like creatures and a giant wallaby.

Horse owners warned:

Saddle pads may contain anthrax

The U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission (CPSC) in cooperation with the Perforated Pad Company has warned consumers, particularly horse owners, that 5,000 to 10,000 "Alaskan Hair Saddle Pads" sold nationwide since January could be contaminated with anthrax spores, according to Joe Brown, chief of the Bureau of Environmental Health of the Mississippi State Board of Health.

The saddle pads, which utilized imported animal hair, retail for between $7 and $9. The pads were manufactured by the Perforated Pad Company, Woonsocket, Rhode Island.

The saddle pads are about three-quarters to one inch thick with cotton duck quilt on one side and exposed short coarse greyish, black colored animal hair on the other side. They range in size from about 26 by 28 inches to 30 by 30 inches.

The pads may bear a three-by-five inch blue label on the quilted side that includes the name of the manufacturer and one of six style numbers: 238, 238R, 500, 500R, 832, and 832R.

Consumers who own one of these saddle pads should place the product in a sealed double plastic bag and call a local health department for disposal instructions.

Consumers should NOT attempt to sterilize the pad, incinerate it, or throw it away because of the risk of further contamination.

Perforated Pad Co. has voluntarily agreed to refund the price of the pads to all purchasers. Consumers who bought one of these pads should contact the retailer from whom it was purchased to arrange for a refund.

The commission was alerted to the possibility of anthrax contamination by the Washington State Department of Social and Health Services following the death of a horse in the state and the subsequent deaths of numerous animals on a private game ranch which were fed the infected horse meat.

Anthrax is an acute bacterial disease which can be fatal for humans if untreated. It can be transmitted from a product bearing the anthrax spores, through skin contact, inhalation or ingestion of contaminated foods.

Anthrax infection is not contagious from one person to another. The disease, for humans and animals, may start with a blister or pustule and can develop into a depressed area of dead tissue with a dark crust. Fever and other symptoms may not appear until the disease is severe.

Schools in STAR program

The Mississippi Economic Council has announced that Hancock and Harrison Counties are represented in MEC's 1974-75 Student-Teacher Recognition (STAR) Program. The announcement was made by Clyde Muse of Meridian, chairman of the Education Committee.

More than 300 schools participated in 1973-74.

The STAR Program emphasizes the importance of scholastic achievement and encourages greater efforts in this direction by Mississippi students. The program also honors the teaching profession.

Each Star Student is asked to designate the qualified Mississippi teacher, regardless of grade taught, who in the Star Student's opinion, made the greatest contribution to his or her scholastic achievement. To qualify, a Star Teacher must be an active classroom teacher in either a public or private school or a retired teacher.

Star Student and Teacher awards will be presented before a student assembly in the spring.

Among Coast high schools participating in the STAR program this year are Bay Senior High and St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis; Coast Episcopal High in Pass Christian; Long Beach High; and Hancock North Central in Kiln.

Directory Assistance is a service designed primarily to provide callers with those new or changed numbers not listed in the telephone directory. Studies show that the volume of calls to DA have doubled every ten years, while the cost of providing this service has gone up three or four times over the same years.

Here in Mississippi, over 225,000 calls are made daily to Directory Assistance, and, in most cases, the requests are for numbers already listed in current telephone directories. In a single year, operator wages for handling just these calls are over four million dollars.

While the majority of our customers use DA occasionally, it is clear that a few are using it excessively and unnecessarily. This means customers who are either non-users or relatively infrequent users of this service are, in effect, subsidizing the heavy or frequent users. To help control the amount of local DA calls... and the fast-rising cost... the Bell System has developed a plan to charge those who use the service. In those areas where the plan has been placed in effect, it has substantially reduced the number of DA calls.

We have no immediate plans to charge for such calls in Mississippi, but we are making special studies to find ways to control the rapid increase in the volume of calls and the costs. At the same time, we are asking your cooperation. Please look in the book for your numbers and keep a list of frequently called numbers close by the telephone. And remember to use DA only when the number you want is not listed.

It's part of the Thanksgiving tradition for families to get together 'round the table and share the turkey and all the trimmings. But, if you can't be with all your friends and relatives during this special holiday, share the Thanksgiving spirit with them, the long distance way. Dial your calls the night before or early on Thanksgiving Day and avoid possible delay. Long distance is the next best thing to being there.

During 1974, South Central Bell will spend an estimated $68,000,000 with Mississippi businesses to purchase goods, services, and contract work. These local expenditures are only one of the many ways South Central Bell contributes to Mississippi's economy.

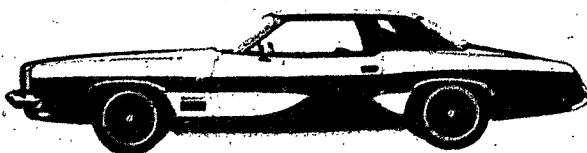

Now's the time to start your Christmas shopping, and the easiest and fastest way to shop is through the Yellow Pages. Look in the book and you'll find product and service headings listed alphabetically followed by names, addresses, and phone numbers of business people ready to serve you.

STRETCH FERTILIZER

There's going to be a short supply of fertilizer again in 1975. To make the best of a bad situation, plan now. First, have your soil sampled to determine your lime and fertilizer needs. Then use fertilizers where they are most needed.

If the land shows a need for lime, apply it. Plant legumes in grass pastures to supply needed nitrogen. If available, use animal wastes (manure).

If nitrogen is short, consider a crop such as soybeans which supplies its own nitrogen.

REDUCE CALF FEED COSTS

Storing colostrum (the first milk after calving), allowing it to ferment and then feeding the fermented colostrum to calves is an excellent way to reduce the costs of calf raising.

Some suggestions for storing colostrum are:

Collect and store fresh colostrum in a clean container. Stir each time new colostrum is added. If three days pass without adding colostrum, do not add any more to that batch.

Store in a cool location with temperatures of 50 to 60 degrees where possible. Protect it from flies by closing or covering the container. Do not add milk from cows being treated for mastitis, since antibiotics stop fermentation causing the milk to not sour properly.

Fermented colostrum will keep safely from two to six weeks depending upon the temperature. It will spoil fast in extremely hot weather. Stir or mix fermented colostrum daily.

Feed calves fresh or fermented colostrum from birth. Dairywomen are usually advised to feed calves fresh colostrum the first two or three days, then to switch to fermented colostrum. If calves refuse the fermented colostrum, then switch gradually.

Develop a routine feeding system. Feed at the same time each day, gradually increasing the amount as the calf grows. Feed the calf grain as early as possible. Wean the calf when it is eating a pound and a half or more of calf starter ration daily.

For feeding, mix one part warm water with two parts fermented colostrum. Feed the total mixture at the rate of 10 percent of the calf's body weight. For example, a 60-pound calf should receive six pounds of the total mixture daily.

Besides reducing feed costs, some research indicates that scours are reduced by feeding fermented colostrum. Apparently fermented colostrum is more easily digested than whole milk, since less curd forms.

FROM PASTURES TO BEANS?

If you are planning to plow pastureland and plant soybeans, then take soil samples. In most cases this land has an extremely low pH and lacks phosphate and potash.

AFTER HARVEST JOBS

There are a number of jobs you can do this fall after harvest to save time next spring. They include:

Shred stalks and clean ditches. Deep plow, chisel or subsoil soils that need it. Subsoil diagonally to row direction for the last trip over the field this fall.

Follow the combine or cotton picker with a lime truck if lime is needed on the land. You cannot look at land and tell whether lime is needed. To make sure, have your soil tested.

If erosion is not a problem, spread phosphate and potash fertilizers now on land that needs them. Landform or at least fill pot holes on fields that need it. A good disking and land planning may be all that is needed. Apply herbicides to land that is to be plowed this fall.

Clean and store equipment properly so that it will be ready to roll next spring when you need it.

Attorney plans to take objections to court

George F. Riess, a Bay St. Louis resident and a New Orleans attorney, told the Echo that he plans to file a federal court suit that would stop the proposed duPont Company from discharging wastes at Delisle.

He said that he was not opposed to the introduction of industry into Hancock County but that he wanted the proposed titanium dioxide plant to be changed from the north side of the Bay of St. Louis to Hancock Industrial Park because the waste discharges would raise the temperature and damage the marine life.

New gardening concept proposed

Picture, if you can, a suburban garden ringed with asters, marigolds, lilacs, hollyhocks, mockingbirds, praying mantises, and raccoons.

The flowers and shrubs sound all right, you say, but what about those birds, insects, and animals? What have they got to do with gardens?

Wildlife - including rarely-seen birds, small mammals, and even non-poisonous reptiles - can become the most colorful and intriguing part of your garden if you plan it right, according to a new book, "Gardening with Wildlife" published November 15 by the National Wildlife Federation.

The new concept in gardening calls for city dwellers, as well as suburbanites, and owners of country estates to enhance interest in their plots by making them into attractive habitats for winged, furry, and crawling creatures. It can be done by providing the right plants for food, adequate water, shelter, and nesting places. A garden receptive to wildlife, the book argues, will let you "claim your kinship with the creatures awaiting you outside your back door, for your sake as well as theirs."

The 191-page "guide to attracting and enjoying the fascinating creatures in your backyard," with 118 color photographs and 129 line drawings contains garden plans for all U.S. climates and for virtually every small animal but the skunk - which, it concedes, "is one wild animal which is simply incompatible with suburbia."

It also contains many tips for living economically and in harmony with nature, including these: "did you know" items:

A tomato juice bath will remove the odor from a household pet that has tangled with a skunk.

Marigold leaves contain scented oil glands which emit an odor repulsive to flies, fleas, and other insect pests. Some state forestry departments will provide tree and shrub seedlings, including the wildlife-attracting autumn olive, at well below-nursery cost.

Reliable and usually free soil tests can be obtained through county agricultural agents, usually listed in phone books under the name of the county government.

"Gardening with Wildlife" is the outgrowth of an article titled "Invite Wildlife Into Your Backyard" in the April-May, 1973, issue of the magazine "National Wildlife." That one article produced requests for a quarter of a million reprints, said Alma Deane MacConomy, one of the editors of the new book, "and so we decided we ought to provide more information on the subject in book form."

The introductory chapter was contributed by Roger Tory Peterson, the distinguished American ornithologist, who recalls that he wrote some years ago: "The imaginative gardener sows his borders not only with red, pink, and yellow hollyhocks, but also with red cardinals, rosy purple finches, and yellow grosbeaks." In his chapter Peterson also offers a few hints on how to identify wild creatures attracted to well-planted habitats, ranging from bobolinks to dragon-fly nymphs. By his method - what's its size, its shape in silhouette, its dominant color and how does it move? - even a city dweller can soon determine that a small brown animal that waddles is a woodchuck rather than a gopher.

"Gardening with Wildlife" should be a welcome addition to any naturalist's library. A book for all seasons, ages, and sections of the country, it is available from the National Wildlife Federation, at 1412 16th St. N.W., Washington, D. C. 20036, at $10.95 until January 1 and $12.95 thereafter.

Heavenly Pecan Torte

Easy to make, easy to enjoy

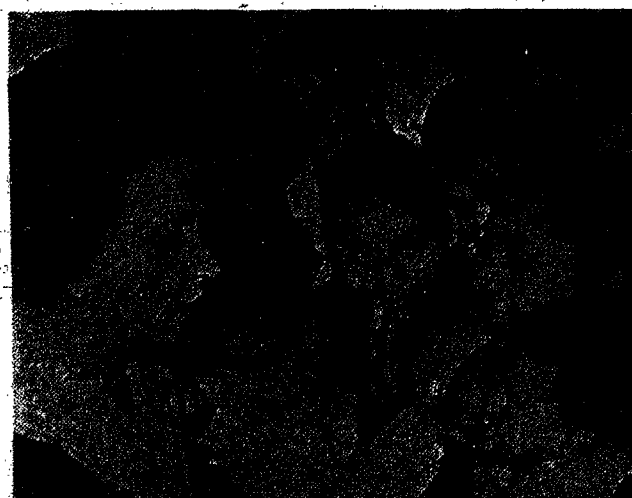

A good holiday dessert doesn't have to be hard to make. Nor does it have to be expensive. That is if it's a holiday dessert that lists eggs as one of the main ingredients. A holiday dessert like Heavenly Pecan Torte.

Heavenly Pecan Torte is the kind of recipe that fits right in with any holiday gathering. A family dinner, dinner party, buffet, a coffee...anything that calls for a people-pleasing dessert. And if there's one way to describe Heavenly Pecan Torte, it's "pleasing." Pleasing to make. Pleasing to look at. Especially pleasing to eat.

Eggs. A holiday tradition:

- HEAVENLY PECAN TORTE
- 3 cups very finely chopped pecans
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 6 eggs, separated
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 1/2 cups sugar
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
 - 1 pint heavy cream
 - 1 cup confectioners sugar
 - 1/2 cup grated Bakers chocolate

Mix nuts with flour and baking powder. Add salt to whites and beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add 1/2 cup sugar, beating thoroughly until whites stand in stiff peaks and sugar dissolved. With same beater, beat yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually add 1 cup sugar and vanilla. Fold pecan mixture into whites then fold in egg yolk mixture. Line 9-inch layer pans with greased paper. Divide batter into pans. Bake in slow oven, 325 degrees; 30 minutes. Cool 15 minutes. Turn out, remove paper and cool. Add confectioners sugar to heavy cream and whip until stiff. Spread cream and sprinkle chocolate between each layer and on top layer. Garnish with pecan halves. Refrigerate until serving time. Makes 12 servings.

Drugs and your health

by John F. Russell, M.D.

There has been much written in the newspapers in recent months about the United States anger at the Turkish government because of their decision to once again cultivate the opium poppy.

Congressmen have come out loudly condemning Turkey. For several years now the U.S. has paid Turkey millions of dollars not to grow opium, feeling that this would cut off the supply of heroin and stop drug addiction. Now Turkey is once again growing opium poppies, refusing U.S. dollars in subsidy and everyone is screaming that heroin addiction will be on the increase.

But there are many factors that no one is considering and a lot of basic reasons for believing that this is political propaganda.

First of all, heroin addiction is still on the increase even though Turkey did not grow opium the last two years. The actual statement being made is that the increase of heroin addiction is on the decrease... or it is not increasing as greatly as it once was.

Enough opium is grown in other countries to get into illegal channels, it seems. But the legal sources were difficult to find and we had to go to Port Knox to take from the opium supply held there in order to manufacture such legal and necessary drugs as morphine and codeine which are extremely vital in the medical field. So our own legal supply has been cut back, which could become a hardship, while illegal supplies were still available to addicts.

Secondly, although millions were paid to the Turkish government, this money did not filter down to the poor farmers who depended on the crop for their livelihood. Thus the farmers fields were barren and they had no income. On top of that, the leaves of the opium poppy are a food staple to the poor there, much as turnip greens are here. There is no addicting substance in the leaves, just nourishment for the farmer and his family.

Also, this same plant is the only one of the many varieties of poppies that produces edible seeds. The poppy seeds that we have all eaten in pastries and on rolls. Poppy seeds and leaves, therefore, were no longer available to the poor in Turkey to put food on their tables. Besides having no crops and therefore no money, they now had an inexpensive food supply denied them.

The Turkish government has promised to keep these fields under the strictest of surveillance and control. The medical world needs morphine and codeine which come from this plant. The Turkish farmers need the plant for food, work, and income.

The world has already witnessed one war fought over opium... the so-called Opium Wars of 1840-42. The British, believe it or not, were smuggling opium into China and the Emperor of China decided to stop it, arousing the ire of the British government who declared war.

In 1842, Britain won the war, was given Hong Kong and reimbursed $6 million for the destroyed opium. Britain continued to import illegal opium into China from India until 1908. Now the governments are again becoming embroiled over the same plant! And once again it is the people who are suffering.

Stopping the cultivation of the opium poppy in one country is NOT the answer to reducing heroin addiction. It simply makes it more profitable for the underground dealers and costs the addicts and society, as a result, more money.

The answer lies not in stopping the supply which will continue to flow despite all efforts, but rather in stopping the demand. If we can create a better world, the young people who have self esteem and purpose in life, who are able to cope with everyday problems, and who don't feel the need to run away from this reality of life... then we won't have to upset the ecology of the world. Our problem will solve itself, and the only use for the opium poppy will be as a food for the Turks and a vital medicine for the world.

VA form due Jan.

More than a million persons, who will receive income questionnaires with Veterans Administration pension checks for November, must return them by January 1, instead of the customary January 15 deadline.

Merlyn J. Cook, Assistant VA Center Director for the Regional Office, explained that the new deadline was set to relieve the annual logjam in preparation of January checks when pensioners returned the questionnaires near or after the former January 15 deadline. Pensioners are urged to promptly complete and return the questionnaires.

Under the law, VA mails questionnaires to veterans on non-service-connected pension rolls, widows of veterans receiving pensions based on the non-service-connected death of a husband, and certain parents who receive monthly checks because of the service-connected death of a veteran or serviceman.

Local artist pays tribute

In memory of Cathren Larman Pettit, for whom his wife was named, Gulf Coast artist J. Russell Gould donated a canvass to be sold to the highest bidder at a Gulf Coast DAR meeting with proceeds to go to the state Bicentennial project, the beautification of the Rosalie Gardens in Natchez.

Mrs. Nunez C. Pilet of Bay St. Louis, high bidder, said the painting, called "The Gathering Storm" depicts a familiar second-growth loblolly pine tree, gnarled and stunted from previous storms, bent and bracing for an oncoming hurricane.

"As I look at this painting," Mrs. Pilet said, "I have a feeling the tree will survive the storm, and I value this oil not only because of Mr. Gould's ability to put on canvass an indepth feeling, but because of the generous spirit in which it was given."

Cathren Larman Pettit (later Mrs. Miller) lived in Washington, D. C. where she was a member of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and an educator. She taught for 49 years first in the Industrial Home School and later as principal of the Eagon High School.

Mrs. Fred Sinquefield, treasurer of the Gulf Coast Chapter, said, "I am forwarding the check to Natchez feeling this early and spontaneous gift will prompt others toward our project - that of completing the Rosalie Gardens by 1976."

The Diamondhead Parent's Bus Assn. sponsored a highly entertaining Sunday afternoon with Chuck Ryan doing his "thing" — holding his audience captive with his music and voice.

Under the capable direction of Mrs. Sam Parnell and a host of others, we extend our thanks to those who served and donated, a benefit dance was held at the Airport Hanger where a most congenial crowd thoroughly enjoyed themselves to Chuck's lively music. A few of the revelers spotted here and there included Ray Stewart from Picayune, "Hungry" Exnicious and his group from Bay St. Louis; William O'Neill and friends from the Bay (Corky, that singing was excellent!) Paul Montjoy and his family from Waveland; and from Diamondhead, Mr. and Mrs. T. Berry, K. Saucer, C. Cook, J. Lewko, R. Criss, J. Salvatore, H. L. Adams, H. Kelly, the "Great Dane" Bartender, and the Sam Parnells. Mary Hoppert and Connie Maggio came with friends...and many more too numerous to mention here.

This same Association, under Mrs. Parnell, also sponsored a delicious po-boy sandwich day last week. Good to see Wally and Alice Little back from their fabulous trip to Alcupulco, Mexico and still having the energy to dance it up Sunday!

New officers recently installed in our Volunteer Fire Department are Harry Devine, president; Eugene Kibling, vice-president; Carl Greaves, secretary; Max Lund, treasurer, and T. C. Jones, fire chief.

All these volunteer men and many more do such outstanding work under the guidance of Ed Friloux, the fire chief for the Diamondhead Fire District. Ed devotes many unselfish hours in his capacity and we do thank you, Ed!

The November meeting of the Diamondhead Garden Club was held at the Country Club where members heard a talk on the subject of Hybridizing by Mrs. Augustus Elmer. She and her husband are experts on this subject; a slide presentation was a highlight of her talk.

Mrs. John Lewko has accepted chairmanship of the lending library, a new program for the club. As our library on gardening, plants, birds, etc. grows we hope we can extend this book service to other than members. A special tribute was made by Mrs. Thomas Shelton to the founder of the club, Mrs. W.L. Templet. The president and her husband, George were able to buy and distribute 44 large azalea plants to members and residents of Diamondhead in the interest of the Club's beautification project. Plans were discussed for the Club's Christmas party and then luncheon followed. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hall were winners of the November Garden of the Month plaque.

Special Bouquets Dept.: There always seems to be an outstanding person in your community who just goes on working quietly, doing and thinking of others no matter what the returns. I'm sure we have several here but for today one special person comes to mind for whenever there are tickets to sell for civic functions, church services to be coordinated, children's entertainment to be brought together, or most anything to better our community there is... Mrs. Richard Criss, Virginia hails from New Orleans, has three active children, an understanding husband and yet finds time to do all that is asked of her... and so nicely too!

In our recent tennis tournament the Women's Single champion was Sharon Robichaux; runner-up, Marilyn Lassen. In the Men's division the winner was Robert Walker, and runner-up was Jess Doussan. This proved to be such a great asset here that there are plans brewing for another match sometime in December.

Recent houseguests of the Alvin Moore family were Col. and Mrs. W. Simon from Oceanside, California, who really enjoyed our beautiful weather!

Since our Catholic priests have such a heavy schedule on Sundays and so many extra miles to travel wouldn't it be more than nice to show our appreciation by participating at Sunday Mass at the Villa Hotel during our slack winter season? We miss seeing many of our residents now and need all for we want to keep our 11 a.m. Mass going!

Have a truly meaningful Thanksgiving Holiday and see you in two weeks.

The group was invited to attend the Extension Homemakers Clubs' Christmas salad luncheon at noon December 5 at the Agricultural Center and each member was asked to bring her favorite salad with the recipe.

Mrs. Cliff Banderet was hostess for the social hour. The next business meeting will be held January 21, 1975, at the Agricultural Center.

Teens and Tweens perform

Three garden club officers present at the meeting were, seated left, Mrs. Bertha Little, past-president of the Pass Christian Garden Club, third vice-president of the Council and publicity chairman; Mrs. Elda Duke, Council president. Standing is Mrs. E. Dinkelspiel, president of the Pass Christian Garden Club. Mrs. Little is presently working on registering the centuries-old oak trees in Pass Christian.

Methodist Children's Home calls for help

The children of The Methodist Children's Home in Jackson are again in need of the special support of their friends during the 1974 Thanksgiving through Christmas season.

"If these significant occasions are to be times of real joy and happiness for the children of The Home, much special assistance will be needed," the Rev. J. H. Morrow, superintendent, stated.

The Methodist Children's Home is in its 77th year of service to children from broken homes. "Most of our boys and girls in the Home come from families which have been broken by death, divorce, desertion, neglect or failure," he said. "Many are bitter, discouraged and frightened when they come to us," he explained, "and we must provide specialized care."

The Rev. Mr. Morrow stated, "The special Christmas wishes and actual needs of the boys and girls place an added strain on the finances of the Home. If Thanksgiving and Christmas are to be the times of real joy and happiness for the children under our care, much special assistance is needed from all of their friends."

Methodist churches throughout the state place a designated amount in their budget each year for the support of the Home, and each local congregation has been requested by the superintendent of the Home to receive a special offering one Sunday in December. This offering will be over and above the usual budget item.

The Home receives support from friends in business and industry and from individuals throughout the state who are concerned for the welfare of children.

The main campus of the Methodist Children's Home is located on North West Street at Woodrow Wilson Ave., and the Home has several off-campus groups including a group of junior-high boys who live on the Methodist Home Farm about four and a half miles from Jackson.

Special gifts for the holiday season can be directed to The Methodist Children's Home, c/o Rev. J. H. Morrow, P. O. Box 36, Jackson, Ms. 39205.

Camp Iti Kana dedication

Mrs. Lucien Gex of Waveland, first vice president of the Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council board of directors, served as mistress of ceremonies for the recent Camp Iti Kana Appreciation and Rededication Day. Seated on the platform are council officers and guests honored during the ceremony for their contributions to the Camp's development.

Girl Scouting:

Enriches the community

Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council comprises the southern 15 counties of Mississippi and is largely supported by six United Funds: Jones, Forrest, Harrison, Jackson, Hancock and South Pearl River United Funds.

Camp Iti Kana is located just north of Wiggins on Highway 13 (Forrest County). It is a beautifully developed camp on 339 acres of thickly wooded pine land. Established camping is offered every summer for six continuous weeks with swimming, boating, archery, horseback riding, crafts, primitive camping, hiking, nature study, etc.

In addition to resident camping, the camp is used throughout the year for troop camping with the camp superintendent on the site at all times. Day Camps and intertroop camps are operated all over the council during the summer.

The purpose of having all types of camping is to be sure that every girl is offered a camping experience. The programs in the Day and Troop Camps are very much the same as those of Iti Kana.

Echoes

Mrs. Betty Romanoff and Mrs. Vicky Ladner have returned from a vacation in Florida. Points of interest visited were Tampa's Busch Gardens, Cypress Gardens and Disney World.

Tender Loving Care

The mobilizers and heated lowerator acquired by the Hancock General Hospital Women's Auxiliary have arrived and are in operation. Again we want to express our appreciation to the auxiliary for this new equipment to be used for better patient care and service.

E. Singleton, L.P.N., A. Garcia, L.P.N., E. Maurigi, L.P.N., C. Dorsey, L.P.N., R.Coe, L.P.N., D. Friddle, L.P.N., and E. Pepperdene, L.P.N. attended a workshop on "Trauma" conducted at Singing River Hospital last week in Pascagoula. Margaret Harris, L.P.N., president of the district chapter of the Association of Licensed Practical Nurses, and E. Stephens, L.P.N. attended the National Convention for L.P.N.'s in Jackson last week. The convention was held at the Hotel Heidelberg. Also on the road last week from Nursing Service was M. DeRocha, R.N. who attended a Nursing Audit Workshop in Jackson.

Tribute paid to Iti Kana contributors

Several hundred Girl Scouts, adult volunteers, parents, and Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council friends gathered at Camp Iti Kana on a recent Sunday to pay tribute to several individuals marking the completion of the Master Plan conceived and begun in 1966 for the camp.

The 339-acre camp, located north of Wiggins near Maxie just off U.S. Highway 49, has been constructed with private contributions and a labor force made up mainly of Seabees.

Specially honored, and presented with an artists sketch of the camp by Joe Moran, were Messrs L. O. Crosby, Jr., of Picayune, and E. P. Wilkes of Biloxi.

The presentations, made by Alfred E. Rushing, of Biloxi, president of Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council board of directors, followed a historic sketch of the Council and Camp Iti Kana given by Mrs.

William E. Fairley, executive director.

Citing the honorees' contributions to the youth of this area, Rushing noted that L. O. Crosby, Jr.'s philanthropy has been spread through Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, libraries, hospitals and other community facilities needed in this area. He contributed the dining hall and other buildings at Camp Iti Kana.

Paying tribute to E. P. Wilkes, he noted the many years given personally to endeavors for young girls and boys in South Mississippi, the outstanding life he had led as a newspaper publisher, and his total interest in working for the betterment of his community.

Accepting the award on behalf of Mr. Wilkes was his daughter, Mrs. Jo Wilkes Reicker. She responded by reminding the audience that her father had been a "card carrying Girl Scout for many decades and was very proud of that fact". She extended Mr. Wilkes' regrets that ill health prevented his attending the event. Wilkes' contribution to Iti Kana built the Program Barn which is dedicated to Mrs. Jo Wilkes Reicker for her more than 40 years of service to Girl Scouting.

Additional awards went to Captain Ward De Groot, Commanding Officer U.S. Naval Construction Battalion Center; John Stinson, Camp Development director, Gulf Pines Council; and Laz Quave former member of the Camp Development Committee.

Mrs. William E. Fairley, executive director of Gulf Pines Council, related a brief history of the Council and how Iti Kana became a reality. She recognized the efforts of past presidents of the council including Mrs. Leonard Stocker, first Council president and Mrs. J. A. Graves who served in that office during the first days of Iti Kana construction.

She also expressed appreciation to present and former Camp Development Committee and Finance Committee members, stressing that the camp had been developed without a major capital development campaign or fund raising drive in order not to interfere with United Way fund raising in the counties which supported the Council.

Mrs. Lucien Gex, of Waveland, 1st vice president of the Council board was Mistress of Ceremonies for the occasion. The Invocation was given by Rev. James Street, Pastor Wiggins 1st Baptist Church. Members of the Senior Planning Board for the Council conducted guided tours of the camp following the ceremonies. The flag ceremony was executed by the Cadette Springboard members. Neighborhood Chairmen served as hostesses at the various camp facilities and in the L. O. Crosby, Jr. Dining Hall for a reception following the ceremonies. Boy Scout Troop 255, handled parking and traffic the occasion under the direction of their master, Doug Binsley Gulfport.

There have been exceptionally low tides for the past week again. As stated before these low tides affect fishing. Fish go for deep holes, can't feed along the banks. If you know the deep holes, you've got it made. In the deep holes speckles, red fish, sheepshead and channel mullets hang out. All that is needed for these are dead shrimp. Of course they can be caught on plugs and shad rigs.

Plenty bass (Green Trout) are still being caught. They are taken on the drop off by fly fishing, casting or trolling. An effective bait is an underwater Black Knot and spinner or treble hook with a skirt, when trolling or casting they travel about a foot and a half underwater.

Believe it or not bass are still hitting a surface bait on warm days. This goes for perch, also.

Reports on dove hunting are good. To prove this fact a dove supper was given by James Ruhr last week with the following present: Gerald Kennedy, Horace Ruhr, James Ruhr, and their wives. Doves, with dirty rice and wine completed the menu. These birds hunt and fish regularly. The cause for some delicious meals. All are good hunters and real sports.

Junior Bourgeois told us of the roe mullets he has been getting down by Bayou Caddy. He and Andy Nelson can really handle a cast net. Mullet and French bread go mighty good when it comes to seafood eating. Tubby Neacise has also been getting his share of the lonely mullets. The fish are running exceptionally large according to them.

Snookum Morel an old time fisherman celebrated his 81 birthday recently. He is still one of the best oyster openers here about. Many happy more, Snookum.

Reporting on Judge Dick Homes' pheasant trip to Sabina, Ill., he was honest. Got only one, he said. Too cold and too much snow, eight inches. Better luck next time, Dick.

Our old fishing buddy Cliff Foster from Memphis, Tenn. is down on another fishing trip for two weeks. He does any kind of fishing or out door sports. Be going with you, Cliff.

Alden Mauffray and Arthur Miller went for green trout Sunday. They are two of our best bass fishermen. Naturally they got their share.

Do you remember when sugar cane grinding was done with a lone mule attached to a long shaft? Well under modern times in the Acadiana area in Louisiana they have processed 45 per cent of the current crops, 515,815 tons up to now. As kids we chewed sugar cane. Now days the average kid doesn't know what sugar cane is. Going fishing the other day we saw a crop of sugar cane down on our way to Ansley. Ain't that something?

Hope you are planning to attend the Sidelines Annual Thanksgiving Social, November 30 in the SSC boy's dining room, starting at 7:30 p.m. Great things are being planned for members and their guests.

For you sports who make a winter garden Barbara and Sam Scaffidi can help you in your planning and planting. They have cabbage and other plants to put out. It is the Evergreen Nursery on Hi-Way 90.

friends. Kinda hard cleaning she said, but it tasted so good.

Perch (Bream) are hitting again. Caught some the other day on a small black gnat and spinner. They will also hit on surface baits on warm days.

According to information large hard crabs are being caught in the canals down at Ansley. There are also plenty gumbo crabs there about. If its too rough out front to go to the canals to get 'em.

If you don't know where to rent a boat Roy Baxter at Pearlinton has them. Fresh and salt water fishing in Pearl River is good the year around. The camp is on the mighty Pearl.

Fresh water cat fish are being caught most every where right now. Set out a couple of set lines. It is easy and profitable. Fresh water cat fish is a delicacy any old time.

Hunting is tops at this time. Most seasons are now open for doves, rabbits, squirrel, ducks and geese. Marsh hens are plentiful too. The cool season opens on Nov. 27 and closes Dec. 5. Next season opens on Dec. 11 to Jan. 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Baudry, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Elliott and Mrs. Ray Hoffman were over Sunday. Too busy attending to business to do any fishing, etc. Will be back later they said.

Gene Lueder's caught a bass about three pounds last week.

Backyard bobcat

Melvin Wainwright and son, Jay, bagged this 50 pound bobcat near their home in Bayou Lacroix recently while squirrel hunting.

Dad brings home the bobcat

"Daddy got him right between the eyes", said Jay Wainwright explaining how he and his father, Melvin, happened to come home from a squirrel hunting trip recently with a 50-pound bobcat that measured three feet from nose to tail.

Jay was understandably relieved that his Dad is such a good shot as the cat was bagged near the Gum Branch area of Bayou La Croix in Hancock County. The Wainwrights live not too far from the spot where the bobcat turned up.

Several neighbors of the Wainwrights had reported seeing the cat in the vicinity but had been unsuccessful in killing it. Another neighbor credits the bobcat with a missing baby goat from his yard.

Melvin modestly said he Ever try broiling fish, any kind? It's easy. Don't have to scale them. Eat the meat with a fork. Us folks who are on a diet learn lots of things. Even how to lose weight.

The weather over the weekend was tough on catching shrimp. Another excuse for the scarcity and cost of them.

Fish don't know the difference between shrimp and rubber worms. Using rubber worms on a casting rod is an art. Ask some fisherman who uses them.

Rocks end season on winning note

by Edward Favre

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chows defeated the Vancleave Bulldogs 18-14 Friday night at Stanislaus Stadium for their fourth win of the season against six losses as a new member of the Pascagoula River Conference.

The Vancleave Bulldogs threatened early in the game but were stopped when defensive back Bennie French intercepted a Bill Brady pass at the Stanislaus 15-yard line.

Unable to move the ball the Rocks had to punt the ball and the Bulldogs moved all the way down to the Stanislaus nine-yard where they were held. Stanislaus took over on their own 20-yard line after Scott Cutrer missed a 23 yard field goal for the Bulldogs and on two plays picked up ten yards and a first down at the Rocks 30-yard line, before the quarter ended 0-0.

On the first play of the second period, Rock running back Monnie Elchos fumbled the ball at the Stanislaus 33-yard line where it was recovered by Bulldog Charles Hutchinson.

It took the Bulldogs seven plays to cross the Stanislaus goal line. Cutrer made good on the extra point attempt from placement giving Vancleave a 7-0 lead with 8:41 to go in the second quarter.

Stanislaus, not to be denied, took the ensuing kick-off and marched 66-yards, from their own 34-yard line in 12 plays with running back Pat Labat taking the ball in from the one-yard line for the touchdown. The two-point conversion attempt failed making the score 7-6 in favor of Vancleave with 4:04 to go in the second period.

Charles Hutchinson fumbled the kick-off after the TD at the Bulldog 14-yard line where Mike Siebert recovered for the Rocks.

It took three plays for the Rocks to capitalize on the Bulldog miscue as Monnie Elchos carried the ball in from five-yards out for the TD. Again the two-point conversion failed and Stanislaus held a 12-7 lead at halftime.

Stanislaus kicked-off to Vancleave to open the third quarter and the Bulldogs came roaring out as they marched on their own 20-yard line in nine plays. The TD came on an 11-yard pass play from Bulldog quarterback Bill Brady to Bud McVea. Cutrer again converted the extra point from placement giving Vancleave a 14-12 lead with 8:35 remaining in the third period.

Hutchinson fumbled again for Vancleave and Mike Siebert again recovered for the Rocks at the Stanislaus 47-yard line.

Stanislaus was held on downs and had to punt to Vancleave. Brian King fumbled the punt at the Bulldog 27-yard line and Pat Labat recovered the ball for the Rocks.

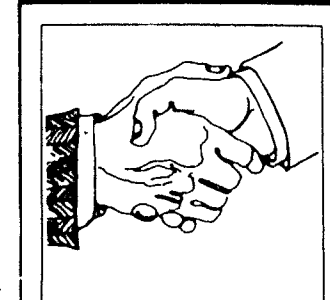

On the first play of the series Rock quarterback Mike Graeber hit Mike Russell with a 27-yard pass for the Rocks touchdown that gave them an 18-14 lead with 8:52 to go in the fourth quarter. The extra point attempt failed.

With just seconds left in the game; the Bulldogs were moving towards the Rocks goal line and the final whistle blew with the ball on the Stanislaus 15-yard line.

State-Ole Miss renew grudge Saturday

UNIVERSITY, Miss., - The football game that counts, the most in Mississippi turns up Saturday.

It's Ole Miss and Mississippi State week in the Magnolia State, this one in Jackson for the 14th game there since the two schools began feuding back in 1901.

Because of Johnny Vaught's direction and coaching skills, the Rebels enjoy a comfortable 38-26-6 series advantage over the Bulldogs. He took over as the Ole Miss coach in 1947 and proceeded to win 19 games while losing only twice and deadlocking four times.

Vaught's era was 1947-70. He returned as the Rebel football boss in late-September of 1973 and finished up with a 38-10 trouncing of the first team coached by Bob Tyler last Nov. 24. That was Vaught's 190th coaching victory.

Tyler's current machine, a 7-6 winner over LSU last Saturday in Jackson is certain to be favored over Ken Cooper's youthful Rebs, who are 2-7 on the season and 0-5 in Southeastern Conference results.

Ole Miss dropped its sixth consecutive game last Saturday in losing 29-17 to Tennessee in Memphis.

Aid a fortnight ahead of State's one-point shading of LSU in Jackson, the Tigers whipped Ole Miss 24-0 in Baton Rouge.

The Bulldogs are 2-3 in SEC results and can pull even for the season with a win Saturday in Mississippi Memorial Stadium.

Saturday's meeting will be the 71st between the two old time rivals.

BAY ST. LOUIS — Coach Terrell Randolph and the Crystal Springs Tigers will be vying for their second straight Jaycee Bowl championship Friday night as the 1973 defending bowl champs place their title on the line against Chalmette High School, of Chalmette, La. Game time is 8 p.m. at Tiger stadium.

Randolph, whose Tigers are currently 8-2 this season, defeated St. Paul's of Covington, La. last year in their first appearance in the Jaycee Bowl. The Tigers are a member of the Little Dixie Conference.

Randolph, whose coaching record at Crystal Springs is an impressive 23-6-1, is a 1954 graduate of Bay High School and former coach of the Hancock North Central Hawks.

The Chalmette Owls, under Coach Bobby Nuss, currently boast a 5-3-2 record in the tough District 11. The Owls are a AAAA rated team.

The Owls are also making their second appearance in the post season Jaycee Bowl. In their first appearance in the 1971 Jaycee Bowl, the Owls lost a hard fought game to the Bay High Tigers 7-0, then under the coaching direction of former head coach J. E. Loiacano.

Quarterback for the Owls in Friday night's game will be Mickey Pitcher. Quarterbacking for the Crystal Springs Tigers will be Jimmie Kennedy, who shared signal calling in last year's 20-13 win over St. Paul's of Covington, La. with first string quarterback Steve Lingle.

Pre-game activities scheduled before Friday night's 8 p.m. kickoff at Tiger Stadium include the presentation of the Jaycee Bowl queen, Miss Charlene Fontenot, and maids Frances Spotorno, Nadine Malley, Blendale Hamilton, and Sandra Taylor. Miss Fontenot

, a senior at Bay High, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Fontenot.

Halftime activities include a special halftime show by the Chalmette High School band featuring 112 pieces, 88 marching girls, 27 dancing girls and nine majorettes.

Local winner in the Punt, Pass and Kick competition will also be presented by the Waveland Jaycees in conjunction Charlie Henderson Ford, Bay St. Louis.

Juniors, Seniors start joint sales venture

J.A. O'Neal, supervising principal, announced that Hancock North Central junior and senior high school will hold its first joint fund-raising drive.

The world's Finest Chocolate Candy sale will begin today and last until Monday, December 2, and will cover the Hancock County area.

This year the school will sell chocolate bars with almonds. Bars will sell for 75 cents. Proceeds from the sale will go directly to the students in grades 7-12, with the money used to support class activities and various student organizations. This one major fund drive will eliminate the necessity of several drives throughout the year.

Students will also benefit in other ways, O'Neal said. The sale offers an opportunity for students to participate in the American free enterprise system and to work together toward goals that will benefit them directly. Students will also be given an opportunity to win prizes for themselves and their homerooms, ranging from money to pendants.

O'Neal added that Pizza Huts in Gulfport and Biloxi will give $1 off the purchase of a 13 or 15" pizza with each wrapper presented from an H.N.C. World's Finest Chocolate bar.

The Sea Coast Echo Launches Community Club Awards

The Program

I. What is The Sea Coast Echo Community Club Awards?

This is a $2,000.00 organizational fund raising activity open to non-profit organizations of Hancock County and West Harrison County areas and NOT to individuals. This includes all organizations which are interested in earning dollars for their treasuries for charitable, religious, educational, civic, cultural and other worthwhile purposes. Among those eligible to compete are fraternal, religious, civic, social and charitable organizations and any other club, group or organization certified by The Sea Coast Echo.

II. How does a club participate?

1. An organization enters Community Club Awards by filling out the Official Registration card and mailing it to The Sea Coast Echo Community Club Awards.
2. Cash awards will be made to those participating organizations delivering eligible proofs-of-purchase to a convenient location—referred to as a tally station—to be designated by the paper at a later date. Proofs-of-purchase include sales-slips, receipts, cartons, labels, etc., from firms whose names, products and services will be listed in a Buyer's Guide to be provided free to all participants and their friends, approximately two weeks in advance of starting date.
3. To qualify for grand final awards or participating awards, a minimum of 10,000 points in total proofs-of-purchase must be turned in for each turn-in period scheduled during the entire 16 weeks. This includes bonus credit points which will be announced as the campaign progresses.
4. No group can give or assign credits to any other group. Any club withdrawing from the campaign relinquishes any and all claims to credits accumulated to their account, except for weekly awards already determined, and automatically disqualifies itself for the grand final awards or participating awards.
5. No announcement of relative standings except for the designation of participating groups will be made until the entire campaign is over.
6. There is nothing to sell, NO endorsement of any product or sponsor is either asked or required, nor will the name of any organization be permitted to be used publicly or in the publicity of any sponsor. This is not a lottery. This is not a game of chance.
7. All material and/or proofs-of-purchase delivered to the newspaper become their property, and the paper assumes no responsibility to any participating club except as herein specifically stated and all decisions of this paper are final.
8. Starting date of the campaign will be announced by mail to each participating organization's duly appointed CCA Chairman.

III. How can your club benefit?

1. These cash awards will be earned by groups in weekly competition.
